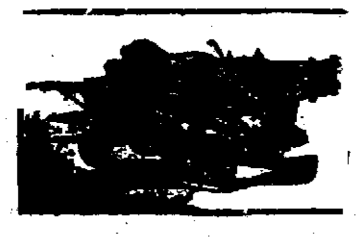
AGENT FOR



The Advance Threshing Machinery.

The best and fastest thresher in America, and a machine that stands without a rival. The ADVANCE Thresher has NEVER been REPLACED by any other machine on the Coast, but has replaced several others that HAVE FAILED to fill WARRANTEE. Why get some OLD STYLE machine because it is cheap when you can get an ADVANCE on the start and do good work in any kind of grain. You do not have to cut and try with the ADVANCE, but start your power, then commence threshing at once. I take the liberty of referring you to the following parties owning ADVANCE Threshers (without their knowledge): Dr. H. A. Davis, Harrisburg, after wasting most of the season trying to run a cheap machine, bought an ADVANCE and averaged 2206 bushels per day. M. F. White & Co., Dixie, same experience, but after getting an ADVANCE averaged 2046 bushels per day. Knox Bros., Albany, with a little 28-inch machine averaged 1650½ bushels per day. Henry T. Bold, Spangle, writes, after trying a —— machine the best part of the season bought an ADVANCE. Was then able to run without a blacksmith and carpenter shop. The ENGINE is guaranteed to pull more than any other, and will outtravel all others on the road. If you hear any loud boasts, please tell the parties the ADVANCE THRESHER and ENGINE are sold on their merits entirely. And I am willing to prove all I claim in any field at any time. Do not be humbugged by buying any machine until you see the ADVANCE. I also handle steam fitting goods iron pipe, laundry machinery and many other specialties. Send for catalogue of what you want.

Constitutional Catarrh.

No single disease has entailed more suffering or hastened the breaking up of the constitution than Catarrh. The sense of smell, of taste, of sight, of hearing, the human voice, the mind,—one or more, and sometimes all, yield to its destructive influence. The poison it distributes throughout the system attacks every vital force, and breaks up the most robust of constitutions. Ignored, because but little understood, by most physicians, impotently assailed by quacks and charlatans, those suffering from it have little hope to be relieved of it this side of the grave. It is time, then, that the popular treatment of this terrible disease by remedies within the reach of all passed into hands at once competent and trustworthy. The new and hitherto untried method adopted by Dr. Sanford in the preparation of his RADICAL CURE has won the hearty approval of thousands. It is instantaneous in affording relief in all head colds, sneezing, snuffling and obstructed breathing, and rapidly removes the most oppressive symptoms, clearing the head, sweetening the breath, restoring the senses of smell, taste and hearing, and neutralizing the constitutional tendency of the disease towards the lungs, liver and kidneys.

Sanford's Radical Cure consists of one bottle of the Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent, and Improved Inhaler; price, $1.00.

RENO SWEPT BY FLAME

The Losses Will Aggregate a Quarter of a Million.

INSURANCE OF LESS THAN HALF

The Flames Soon Passed Beyond Control of the Fire Department and Only Died for Lack of Fuel.

RENO, Nev., May 26.—This afternoon fire broke out in the old theater building opposite the Depot hotel, and in less than five minutes it was a roaring mass of flames. Soon the heat was so intense that the dome of the Depot hotel was on fire, and the flames spead rapidly until that immense structure was a burning sheet.

The fire kept on in its destruction, going east, and soon licked up Bilmore's cigar and tobacco store, the Grand restaurant, J. B. Marshall's law office and residence, a China wash house, and then struck the three-story Pioneer hotel building, which was soon laid low. The next buildings were the two-story Lafayette house and Pollard house, when it crossed Lake street, and soon the Pyramid house was in flames.

In the meantime the fire department was using almost superhuman efforts to save the Palace hotel, and doing good work between the C. P. Co.'s depot and the N. & C. depot, the latter by this time being a sheet of flames. The Palace hotel was almost ready to break out, as the whole eastern side was smoking, but by keeping two streams, one on the ground floor and one on the balcony, the flames were kept in check.

On Center street, the fire was working south and took in its wake Gilmore's gardens, running back of the theater building, a Chinese washhouse, paintshop, French hotel and Inverness house, when it stopped its southward course, and went east, consuming the residences of H. Sample, Pat Malloy, William Clark, Mr. Nellegan, Mrs. Jacob Graff, A. G. Fletcher, Alex Case, Mike Donahue, Mr. Van Buren and Joe Martels. Every building except L. J. Flint's residence was destroyed in the block bounded on the north by Commercial Row, on the west by Center street, on the south by Second, and on the east by Lake Street.

In its eastern course it soon reached the roundhouse and turntable of the Southern Pacific Company, Balsam & Wells's lime house, Martin's lime and cement house and J. F. Aitken's coal house, which were a total loss.

Continuing on in its destructive work, the Silver Star flouring mills were soon on fire, and totally consumed. The flouring mills belonging to the estate of S. C. Fegus were the next victims, and were a total loss.

It took the entire force of the department to cope with the flames on the west; consequently the eastern side of the fire was neglected, and so rapid was the destruction that nothing could be done to check the flames.

By the most strenuous efforts the fire was kept from making its way up Commercial Row.

LOSSES AND INSURANCE.

It is impossibe to get a correct list of the losses to-night, but it is safe to say they will reach $250,000 or $300,000.

Carson sent her two steamers, fully manned, and got here in time to do good work in putting out the fire of the still burning debris. The insurance amounts to about $125,000.

The insurance is divided up as follows: The First National bank agency, Hartford Insurance Company, $6500; Guardian, $2500; North British, $5000; Fireman's fund, $9800; Ætna, $2500; London Association, $2500; North America, $3500; Gurard, $2500; Connecticut, $3500; California, $3000; Anglo $2800; Liverpool, London and Globe, $2000; Lion, $3000; Pennsylvania, $600; South British, $4200; Royal, $1500; Union, $2650; Sun of London, $600; Phœnix, $800.

W. N. Knox, who represents the following insurance companies, estimates his losses at $25,000: Springfield, of Massachusetts; American, of New York; Sun, of San Francisco; Phœnix, of London; Scottish Union and National, of Edinburg; New Hampshire, of Manchester, and National, of Ireland.

The Bank of Nevada carried about $25,000 in the burnt district.

Parry, of the Depot hotel, is a heavy loser. His loss will be at least $35,000, with $22,000 insurance.

The theater building was valued at $13,000, with $7000 insurance.

The Pioneer, Lafayette and Pollard houses are heavy losers, but at this writing it is impossible to get any true estimate. The N. & C. Company's loss is also quite heavy. It is variously estimated at from $5000 to $10,000.

Breck & Co. lose $25,000, with $14,000 insurance.

The estate of F. C. Fogus, $20,000; insurance, $13,000.

This is the third big fire in twelve years.

THE BARK EMERALD BURNED.

The Loss Is About $35,000, and There Was No Insurance.

SEATTLE, May 26.—The bark Emerald was burned at Port Gamble at an early hour this morning. She was lying at the wharf, and was about half laden with 500,000 feet of lumber. The port was aroused at the alarm of fire, and strenuous efforts were made to save the burning vessel. An endeavor was made to scuttle her, but the spreading flames so greatly endangered adjacent shipping and the wharves and mills of the Puget Sound Mill Company that the services of the launch Hyack were brought into requisition to tow the barge across the bay.

These attemps to stop the fire were continued, but they were unsuccessful, and so far as can be learned. The Emerald is a total loss. It is thought, however, that a part of the cargo of lumber can be saved.

The loss is estimated here at $35,000, of which $5000 was on the cargo.

The Emerald was the property of the Puget Sound Mill Company, and was brought to Seattle about eighteen years ago for the service of the company. She has been employed constantly since in the transportation of lumber to San Francisco and South America and Australia and other transpacific ports. Though old, she was yet staunch, and was yet fit for years of use.

It is not known here if there was any insurance.

SAN FRANCISCO THEATERS.

Programme of Booth and Barrett's Last Week.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—This will be the last week of the engagement of Booth and Barrett at the New California, and, contrary to first arrangements, they have decided to make this the close of their season. The programme for the farewell week will be varied. To-morrow and Tuesday nights "Julius Cæsar" will be given, with Booth as Brutus and Barrett as Cassius; on Wednesday and Thursday, and Saturday matinee, "Hamlet;" on Friday, "The Fool's Revenge" and "David Garrick" and on Saturday night "The Fool's Revenge" and "Yorick's Love."

This week will close the season at the Baldwin, and the Bostonians, who are playing an engagement there, will go to the New California for one week, after Booth and Barrett conclude their engagement. The Baldwin will be reopened by the New York Lyceum company in "The Wife."

At the Alcazar Mattie Vickers closes her engagement to-night, and to-morrow night the Powers company will present "The Ivy Leaf."

At the Bush street, during the week, Nat Goodwin will appear in a farce called "A Widow's Victim," in which he will, for the first time in many years, present his imitations of actors—Booth, Barrett, Irving, Jefferson, Robson, Sothern and others.

At the Tivoli "Nanon" will go for some time yet.

To-morrow Jack Dempsey's Star Specialty company opens at the Orpheum with a variety performance. The "Nonpareil" gives boxing exhibitions with Denny Costigan and appears later in a character sketch.

A benefit is to be given Jeffreys Lewis on Sunday night next, at the Baldwin theater, under the special auspices of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Mme. Modjeska has volunteered to appear in one of her plays. Kate Castleton will make her first appearance in some months.

OLD MANUSCRIPTS.

A Rare Collection Recently Sold in London.

LONDON, May 23.—The sale of rare manuscripts from the Hamilton collection, that until lately has been in the possession of the Royal Museum at Berlin, which took place to-day, attracted book-lovers from all over Europe. The list consists of ninety-one manuscripts dating from the Seventh to the Seventeenth centuries. Each volume has a history of its own. There were little brochures which once upon a time were in the possession of Charles VI., of France, Charles VII., Louis XII., Francis I., the Duchess of Orleans, the daughter of James I., of Scotland, Emperor Maximillian, and Charles V., of Germany. There was also a little volume that belonged to Henry VIII. This was a manuscript of the gospels in Latin with translations on purple vellum in letters of gold, and written for Archbishop Wilfield, of York, in 670. In 980 it was presented to the king by Leo X. The manuscript was not sold; it is considered almost priceless. English booksellers offered £25,000 for the collection, but it brought four times that amount at the auction to-day.

A FRUIT FARM FOR BOYS.

Four Hours of Study and Six of Work, and Pay of $2 a Week and Board.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Myron H. Savage, late of the People's Home Savings bank, proposes to organize a stock company at an early date, to start a California boys' fruit farm. The central idea is to provide a farm and school, at which the boys may earn a living, get a moderate education, and also obtain a fair salary.

In speaking of the matter, Savage said: "Our idea is to have a farm of from 1200 to 2000 acres, and it will require two boys for each hundred acres. In connection with the farm we will have a fine school, and, besides that, we will pay the boys $2 a week wages and board. It will pay the investors in the enterprise readily, for the land will be sold on the installment plan, and we will handle fruit to the best advantage, through Eastern firms.

"In Sonoma county there is a farm of 1600 acres that can be got at low rates, and in Yolo county I can get a 1200-acre place at good rates, but no place has yet been selected. I prefer rolling lands, for they are more healthful than lowlands.

"There is a similar farm in New Jersey, and it pays, although it has not half the advantages of this locality. I refer to the boys' farm at Morristown, founded by Frederick G. Burnham. The idea is good, but understand I do not want the impression to get out that it is a reformatory or place for criminals. There are many business men and others interested in boys, and yet they have no position to offer them. They would gladly invest in a few acres on this farm, and allow the boys' work to go toward paying for it. It is for this class largely that I am working. Agriculture, when well directed, offers a larger field for the boys of California than do the trades. Four hours would be devoted to study and six hours to work."

AMERICANS IN PARIS.

Movements of Prominent Figures in Politics and Literature.

PARIS, May 26.—Mrs. General Logan and party will sail for America next Wednesday.

Whitelaw Reid, minister to France, will retain the present legation quarters, but has leased the magnificent hotel of Comtesse de Garmont for his residence.

Frances Hodgson Burnett, the authoress, is here as a guest of Miss Marie Decca. A large reception was given for Miss Burnett Friday, where all the prominent members of the American colony were present.

Ex-Minister McLane sailed yesterday for New York.

The French Academy has awarded Marion Crawford a prize of $200 for his two novels in French, written by himself, and entitled, "Zoroastre" and "Le Crucifix de Marzio."

Ex-Secretary Whitney and family will remain here another week, and then go to Scotland for a few days. They will sail for America June 26.

CALIFORNIA NEWS ITEMS.

The Field of Sport.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—The present week promises to be more productive of sensational athletic events than the last, in which the one-sided contest between Joe McAuliffe and Tom Lees was decided. The match was chiefly interesting in showing that every Australian visitor who has thus far sought laurels in California has met defeat except Jackson, and the opinion of the pugilistic fraternity is that if he meets the winner of the Kilrain-Sullivan fight his career will be cut short like that of his less lucky fellow-travelers. Since Jackson has gone, lesser stars in the fistic firmament hold the boards.

Amateur athletes are all in training for Decoration day, sports and the wheelmen's meetings, which promise to be unusually successful and interesting this year. Oarsmen are looking forward to an unusually successful and interesting Fourth of July regatta, and yachtsmen have already opened the season with all the social formalities. Thursday next the indefatigable Corinthians hold their regatta, and judging by their energy in previous affairs of the kind, the races will be worth visiting.

As regards baseball, the San Franciscans are in the lead, with the Oaklands second and Sacramento and Stockton a tie for third place in the race for the pennant of the California league.

Encouraging Crop Prospects.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Latest reports from interior parts of the state about the season's harvest are particularly encouraging. The fruit crop, although light in some sections, will be more than an average in the state, while the cereal crop and hay crop will be the largest ever known.

Speaking of crops in the San Joaquin valley, the San Joaquin Valley Argus says that preparations upon an immense scale are being made for harvesting the large grain crop of the valley. The late rains have brought out late grain wonderfully, and early grain will be full and plump and greatly increased in weight in consequence of increased moisture when it was maturing. On inquiry, it was ascertained that the damage done to hay is not near so great as was feared.

A Corner in Soda Water.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Manufacturers of soda water in this city recently formed an association and formulated a code of rules, which are to govern their patrons. Saloon-keepers have not taken kindly to the new regulations, especially one which provides that no purchaser will be allowed to change the firm from which he is buying. He must continue purchasing from the same institution, or be put upon the black list, and forever forbidden the right to deal in soda. The saloon-keepers have determined to resist this corner in the effervescing fluid.

A String of Racers for Portland.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Cy Mulkey has left for Oregon with his string of racers. He will commence his season at Portland, and has a good string to start with. He has Guido, Rosa Lewis, Quebec, Bogus and Tom Daley.

Dodging the Responsibility.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—Kate Troy, who formerly worked in Astoria, was arrested to-day and booked for the Magdalene asylum. She lays all the cause of her downfall to a drunken, brutal stepfather.

CULLED AND GATHERED.

Minnie—I am sorry I ever got that hat. I think it makes me look a perfect fright, don't you? Mamie—O, no, not a perfect fright. You know there is nothing perfect in this world.—Terre Haute Express.

The "Opinion Manufacturing Company" has been organized at Bradford, Vt. In the absence of further information it may be assumed that the new concern is a political literary bureau.—Philadelphia Ledger.

"It's all well to cry, 'Turn the rascals out,' but how can it be done?" inquired the major. "Send 'em to the legislature," responded the judge. "The legislature turns out more rascals than anything known of."—Minneapolis Tribune.

Daughter—Mamma, Mr. Strongbox has offered me his heart and hand. Mamma—Do you love him, dear? Daughter—O, yes, mamma; very much. He is worth a million. Mamma—Of course you do, dear. How silly of me to ask such a question.—Washington Critic.

"I don't know," said the fair Angelina, as she sighed heavily, "I don't know why I should be so tired. I haven't done a single thing." "Haven't you, dear?" was her mother's unfeeling reply. "Then why don't you do something? You probably need a change."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Miss Goodheart—Well, I declare! You are right. The idea of a man knowing so much more about ladies' hats than a woman. I see, by reference to the Fashion Journal, that the style of hats you have just described is the latest from Paris. And to think I didn't know! Mr. Nicefellow—I ought to know. I paid $2 the other evening for the privilege of studying one at the theater.—New York Weekly.

Mr. Lusher—I see you have a new coachman, Bibber. Bibber—Yes. I had to discharge the last one for drunkenness. The night he drove me home from the banquet he was so full that he went ten blocks past the house and then went to sleep. Lusher—But why didn't you stop him when you saw he was passing the house? Bibber—Why—the fact is—you see—in fact I was so tired—that I didn't see the house myself.—Terre Haute Express.

A World's Fair for the United States.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The subject of a world's fair is just now receiving a good deal of attention. P. T. Barnum says: "We are ready for the world's fair now. I believe every nation of the earth would be glad of the opportunity to come to this land of enterprise and take a few lessons from the inventive and progressive Yankee. New York is the only place on earth to hold a world's fair, if an assurance of success is to be guaranteed from the start.

THE FORGER CAPTURED

Arrested at Snohomish for His Old Crime at Aberdeen.

RECOVERY OF ALL THE MONEY

His Captor Unaware, at the Time of Arrest, of the Seattle Crime—The Forger's Mother Also Under Arrest.

SEATTLE, May 26.—W. M. White, who forged notes and cashed them at the Puget Sound National bank and the First National bank here yesterday, was captured last night at Snohomish by Sheriff Thompson, in a manner that brings out a series of remarkable coincidences. White, it appears, was the man who some months ago raised a check from $22 to $2200 at Aberdeen Gray's harbor, and succeeded in getting it cashed at the bank there. Amongst others, Sheriff Thompson had been notified of the commission of the crime, and asked to look out for the forger. Several weeks since he met White on the streets of Snohomish, and it immediately occurred to him that he was the man who was wanted at Aberdeen. He made inquiries, but could not make certain at that time, so he bided his time.

Saturday night Thompson saw White get off the Snohomish train, and he concluded to arrest him. White had given his valise to the porter of the Penobscot hotel, and told him to take it to the hotel, as it contained valuables. Then he started to walk, but was stopped and arrested by the sheriff, on a charge of uttering the forged paper at Aberdeen. Thompson placed him in jail, and started with him to Seattle, intending to take him to Aberdeen and claim the $1000 reward.

In Seattle he placed his man in a lodging house, under guard, and then learned for the first time of White's successful crime of yesterday. Thompson, however, concluded to take his man on to Aberdeen and claim the reward.

Sheriff McGraw, of Seattle, had, in the meantime, found out by telegraphing to Snohomish that White had already been arrested and was then in Seattle. Hunting up Thompson, they met him on the streets and asked him for White. Thompson demurred, but upon the assurance of Cashier Furth, of the Puget Sound National, that he would not lose his reward, he consented to deliver him up to the King county authorities.

White was turned over to Sheriff McGraw, who searched him and found $2800 in greenbacks in his pocket.

About this time the officers learned that White's mother was on the train that arrived from Snohomish, and they began a search for her. Finding her, they caused her to be searched, but no money could be found on her.

White having told a story about losing the valise containing the money, a special engine was chartered and the run made to Snohomish. The landlady of the Penobscot house thought Mrs. White had the money, so the party returned and Mrs. White was again approached. After a long argument she was induced to confess, and producing a reticule she turned over $8620 in money. This, with the money already found, made $10,537, or $137 more than he secured from the bank. Mrs. White is in custody.

THE KENTUCKY DERBY WINNER.

Montana Concedes That He Was Named After Spokane Falls.

HELENA, Mont., May 26.—W. G. Preuit, a prominent member of the Montana stables, to which Armstrong, the owner of Spokane, is attached, settles the matter in regard to what place is entitled to the Derby winner's christening in favor of the city of Spokane Falls.

The horse, however, was never in that place. Spokane was bred in Illinois and foaled at Twin Bridges, in the southern part of the territory, and is a true born Montanian. Armstrong had mining interests at Spokane Falls and this was the reason for giving the name of Spokane to the animal.

There was a postoffice at a small place between Taston and Helena called Spokane before the building of the Northern Pacific, but it did not retain that distinction very long after that period. It is a stage station, a stopping place for travelers, with one small hotel, and has lost its prestige, but it still goes by the name of Spokane and this led to the claim here that the horse was named for it.

A FIGHT FOR A CROSSING

Between the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern and a Cable Road.

SPOKANE FALLS, May 26.—Between midnight and daylight this morning a force of fifty men put in the crossing of the new cable road over the tracks of the Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern, on the shore of the northern side, which the latter company had refused to permit them to do. The Seattle, Lake Shore & Eastern people then applied to the court and obtained a temporary restraining order to prevent trespass on their property or interference with the operation of their road, whereupon they sent out a force and tore up the cable road crossing. A bitter fight is anticipated.

FROM OREGON CITY.

A Plunge Down an Embankment, With Serious Results.

OREGON CITY, May 26.—Last night George Ely was driving up the depot hill with a one-horse rig, when the horse became frightened and unmanageable, and plunged over the side of an embankment. The horse, wagon and driver rolled down forty feet, cutting Mr. Ely's head severely. Except from concussion, his wounds are not dangerous.

J. M. Bacon, after a few months' rest, has resumed control of the postoffice, to begin his twenty-first year.

AN EXCITING SCENE AT GUTHRIE.

A Frame Building Picked Up and Carried From a Contested Lot.

KANSAS CITY, May 26.—A Times' special from Guthrie, Oklahoma, says: E. A. Wood, claimant to a lot also claimed by a man named Hayes, engaged a force of men and began, this morning, to erect a building. The aggrieved party was reinforced by a large party of friends and idlers, until they numbered 500. After the contestants had engaged in a wordy quarrel, and at a preconcerted signal by some one, the frame building was picked up by the crowd and carried into the street.

While the disturbance was at its hight, United States Marshal Needles arrived and commanded the crowd to disperse. He was opposed by some of the leaders. He at once secretly sent a messenger for troops, and in order to hold the people in check till the soldiers arrived, sent a deputy marshal into the center of the crowd.

During the next few minutes one or two fights occurred. There was much excitement at this time, but as soon as the blue coats came in double quick time, the turbulent element quited down, and five minutes later carpenters were again at work, with the military around them.

THE SALOONS WERE CLOSED.

Few Arrests Were Necessary in Cincinnati Yesterday.

CINCINNATI, May 26.—With fewer than a dozen exceptions, the saloons were, to all outward appearances, closed to-day. The front doors were shut and locked and the blinds down. There was little or no difficulty in getting admission to perhaps one-third of them by the back entrance. About two-thirds of the saloons that have heretofore kept open on Sunday are believed to have been closed.

There were five arrests by the police of the most defiant violators. In one case the proprietor was arrested three times before he closed. The Law and Order League caused eight or ten saloon-keepers in different parts of the city to be arrested and be brought before the magistrates.

A POWERFUL BLOW.

A Negro Girl at the Point of Death and Her Brother a Fugitive.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—This afternoon Dan Curtis (colored), 22 years old, struck his sister Sarah, who is two years younger, on the neck with his fist, and now she is in a precarious condition at the Pennsylvania hospital. The girl decided to go out for a walk, and her brother was opposed to her doing so. She attempted to force her way past him, and this so angered him that he struck her. At a late hour to-night she had not regained consciousness and is likely to die. Curtis has not been captured.

AN AWFUL TALE OF CRIME.

A Daughter Seduced by Her Father, and the Mother a Raving Maniac.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 26.—A special to the Avalanche from Jackson, Tenn., says: F. W. Blackwell, of Forest, was yesterday lodged in the county jail, charged with the seduction of his 17-year-old daughter. She told the story to her mother, who is now a raving maniac from the effects of the story. Blackwell was arrested and protested innocence. Fearing mob violence, the officials took him to Rankin. It is feared he will be lynched. He was a member of a very prominent and highly respected family in the state.

DR. CRONIN'S FUNERAL.

One of the Most Notable Events in Chicago's History.

SEVEN THOUSAND MEN IN LINE.

Additional Developments That Cast a Shadow of Suspicion Over a Number of Chicago People—Another Arrest.

CHICAGO, May 26.—In all its details the funeral of Dr Cronin to-day was a most notable affair From one end of the big procession to the other, through the endless crowds among the great throng at the cathedral aboard the train after the train had passed the fatal cottage and sped toward Calvary cemetery, the dead man's fearful fate was present in every mind

The corpse had been lying in state in Calvary armory on the lake front and there early this morning the morbid and curious made their pilgrimage

Armed sentries from the Hibernian Rifles stood arms at rest at each corner of a raised platform, on which reposed a catafalque and coffin A crayon portrait of the dead man draped in black stood near the coffin A huge cross of white violets and marguerites woven in with smilax was at the side of the bier and a harp and a smaller cross stood at the foot A candelabra with seven tapers flickered in front of the cross. Ropes of green smilax and white roses were looped from the coffin and about the catafalque and plants were grouped at the corners of the platform A canopy of American flags hung about the bier and festoons of black and white draperies were twined in the bars above it.

Crowds began to gather in front of the armory and the police had to make way for those who wished to enter the funeral hall For three hours a procession in double file marched across the platform

The silver plate on the coffin lid testified that all that was mortal of deceased was in the casket.

TO THE CATHEDRAL.

At last the procession stopped and the pallbearers entered. At their head was Luke Dillon, of Philadelphia Ward O'Meagher Congdon, of New York John Devoy, of New York, and Thomas F White of Detroit, were the others Following them came a large number of prominent local Irish politicians, friends of the dead man

Leaving the armory the casket was placed in a hearse and the procession formed At the head was a platoon of police, followed by the marshal and aides Then came a drum corps and the Hibernian Rifles with arms reversed and next the hearse with its guard of honor and pall bearers The Clan Na Gael guards, Uniformed Rank of the Royal Arcanum, and thousands of members of the Ancient Order of United Workmen came next The Ancient Order of Hibernians 1000 strong several courts of the Independent Order of Foresters, 1000 in number, and 1700 Catholic Foresters were in line The uniformed members of the Royal League, Sheridan Rifles Catholic Benevolent Association, and other orders swelled the line

Marshal Cahill said that over 7000 men were in the procession Four bands and half a dozen drum corps played dirges, or marched to the slow time of funeral marches

A number of flags draped in black, and society banners edged with crepe, were carried by standard bearers.

The line of march was blocked with people, windows stairways and rooftops being covered.

Reaching the Cathedral of the Holy Name, an immense crowd was encountered On the approach of the procession the bell tolled and the organ pealed forth a funeral march

The pallbearers, with their burden, moved up the center aisle and placed the casket on the catafalque The candles of the funeral service were placed beside it and the ceremonies of high requiem mass began

The sermon was by Rev Father Muldoon. He spoke at length of Cronin's kindness of heart and his generous nature, but approached no nearer the tragedy than a few general allusions.

TO THE CEMETERY

After the church services the procession was renewed and proceeded through the crowded streets to the Union depot, at Central and Adams streets. Thirty six cars were filled Hundreds of persons drove out in buggies and carriages and hundreds more came to the cemetery from the suburbs. Heavy black clouds kept many persons away and vague rumors of trouble may have frightened others

Arriving at Calvary marching orders were given, and the body was carried to the public vault. No exercises of any sort took place at the cemetery A threatening spatter of rain warned the crowd that a storm was at hand and the three long trains were soon refilled Within fifteen minutes after arrival at the cemetery the trains were speeding back to the city

Dr Cronin's body will remain in the vault till friends purchase a lot and arrange for a public interment.

MORE ARRESTS.

CHICAGO, May 26.—It was reported late to night that P O Sullivan, the ice man, has been arrested

Peter McGeehan of Philadelphia, was arrested at 4 o'clock this morning, in McCoy's hotel McGeehan is charged with participation in the murder of Dr Cronin and is being held at the Harrison street station, separate from the other prisoners

DETECTIVE COUGHLIN'S STORY.

It Does Not Tally With That Told by Willard J. Smith.

CHICAGO May 26.—If Willard J Smith tells a true story Detective Coughlin's unknown 'Smith,' the man for whom he hired a horse on the night of Cronin's disappearance, is more than ever a mystery

At a socialistic meeting at Waverly hall, this afternoon, a reporter was approached by an acquaintance, and Smith pointed out as implicated in Coughlin's story The reporter accosted Smith, and the latter said he did not know anything about the white horse He is going to see Chief of Police Hubbard about the story, as he wants the chief to know that he had nothing to do with Cronin's disappearance.

Smith says he came here from Hancock, Mich, three years ago. He knew Coughlin in that city, and intended several times to look him up, but never did so till last Tuesday, when happening to be near the Chicago avenue police station, he went in and talked with Coughlin. He saw him again on Wednesday, meeting him on LaSalle street, and has not seen him since. Smith is at present employed by a real estate office here, and refuses to give his occupation previous to entering his present position; that he knew Coughlin he admits, and also that he was twice with the detective immediately preceding the latter's assertion, made on Friday that the man for whom he engaged the horse was Tom Smith formerly of Hancock, Mich, who had since gone to New Mexico

Smith says he has no relatives in the city and no brother He does not know any one by the name of Tom Smith in Hancock

Smith's friends assert that Coughlin finding it necessary to invent a name for the unknown buggy driver, chanced to think of his newly found friend, and afterwards to carry out the story, gave the mysterious individual not only the name but the former address of his friend.

MORE DEVELOPMENTS

A Number of Chicago People Under the Shadow of Suspicion.

CHICAGO May 26.—An extraordinary chain of circumstances in connection with the Cronin case was brought to light this evening Young Miss Murphy, who declared that she saw Dr Cronin coming down town several hours after he left home on the night of his disappearance, is the daughter of a saloonkeeper, in whose place, it is said, an attempt was made to arrest Cronin in connection with an alleged woman scrape Miss Murphy is said to be also a relative of Detective Whalen a partner of the suspected officer, Coughlin

Street Car Conductor Dwyer who corroborated the story that Cronin was seen to alight down town and presumably took a train out of the city is said to have resigned his position and disappeared.

An ex street car man named Tiernan, whose whereabouts could not be located to night, has recently been in the employ of the ice dealer Sullivan It was one of the cards of this ice man that played such a part in luring Cronin to his death

Another arrest has been made. The man King, described by Prisoner Woodruff as the person who hired him to steal a horse the night of Cronin's disappearance, was captured to night in a house of ill fame In a number of particulars King answers the description given of him by Woodruff It is somewhat of a mystery why King had not been arrested before, as it is understood from the officers that he has at no time apparently manifested a desire to leave the city The arrest was kept secret until to night as it was desired to confront Woodruff with him.

THE NET IS DRAWING CLOSE.

Arrest of a Man Who Had Threatened to Kill Cronin.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—The Record to-morrow will say Peter McGeehan who mysteriously disappeared from this city three months ago and was next heard of in Chicago, where it is alleged he threatened the life of Dr Cronin was arrested in that city yesterday The arrest of McGeehan is thought to foreshadow other arrests, as it is known that he has been under the surveillance of Pinkerton detectives ever since the disappearance of Cronin Though he was constantly shadowed it was deemed not wise to arrest him till other important evidence was obtained to demonstrate how far-reaching was the conspiracy which had for its object the murder of Cronin The arrest of McGeehan is interpreted in local Clan na-Gael circles to mean that the knot is being drawn close, and that it will eventually land all the participants in the foul crime

VANCOUVER NOTES

VANCOUVER, W T May 26 1889

Lieutenant Clark who succeeded the late Captain Starring as chief ordnance officer of the department, arrived here with his family the end of last week

Professor Dobbins, of Portland last night produced the cantata "David the Shepherd Boy," as an oratorio at the Presbyterian church, before a fair and select audience with Professor N E Skinner, of Portland, as David," assisted by a well-drilled chorus of native talent. The affair, taken as a whole, proved a musical treat. The choruses showed very careful and conscientious training and reflect great credit upon Professor Dobbins as an instructor and leader It was to be regretted that Professor Skinner could not half do himself justice, having just recovered from a severe attack of pneumonia which rendered his participation in the performance a sacrifice highly appreciated by the audience

The Vancouver Barracks Lawn Tennis Club is actively training for coming contests. The grounds are just now being thoroughly repaired and all the paraphernalia pertaining to this fine out-door game are being put in active fighting trim

CRITICISM OF THE TIME.

Some Observations on Christianity and the Geocentric System

Edward A Freeman in Contemporary Review

The questions which arise out of the alleged contradictions between revealed religion and modern science almost of necessity take two shapes both of which stand apart alike from the literary and critical side of the controversy and from its purely moral side One deals directly with the doctrines of religion, the other only indirectly through the documents in which those doctrines are believed to have been handed down It is one thing to say that the language of the Old and New Testament contradicts the discoveries of modern science It is another thing to say that the Christian system of theology is itself set aside by those discoveries Both these propositions stand quite apart from critical objections to any of the books of the Old or New Testament such objections for instance, as that they are not of the date which has been commonly assigned to them, and which in some cases they seem to claim for themselves. Both objections again stand no less apart from objections to the Christian system on such grounds, for instance, as that that system attributes to the Divine Being a course of action which goes against our natural notions of human justice But the two forms of scientific objection exactly answer, the one to the critical the other to the moral objection To say that the Gospel attributed to St. John cannot be the work of a contemporary of our Lord, and to say that the opening narrative of Genesis contradicts the results of geological research, are objections which, among many points of difference, have one point in common What they directly attack is the record only So the moral and the scientific objection have this in common, that they deal directly with the doctrine itself and not merely with the record Now objections to the record may in the end tell against the doctrine but as long as they deal directly with the record only, their form is that of ordinary criticism, literary historical, or scientific. If it can be proved that the Gospel which we call that of St John was not written by a contemporary and familiar acquaintance of Christ, it can hardly be an honest record The book itself distinctly implies that it is the work of an eye witness And, if that Gospel is not an honest record—allowing for the notions of that day with regard to the composition of speeches—really serious difficulties do arise A good deal of received Christian theology certainly comes from that Gospel. But the scientific accuracy of the book of Genesis or of any other part of the Old Testament is surely a much less serious matter Such questions need not trouble any except those who believe in the absolute infallibility of every jot and tittle of those books as they have come down to us. Even these last have ceased to be disturbed at the mere use of popular language The astronomer himself, when he is not directly talking astronomy, perhaps even sometimes when he is, does not scruple to talk about the sun rising and setting But if we are only set free from the abject worship of books, even contradictions in the shape of direct statement need not trouble us It is surely possible to believe that God chose the ancient Hebrews to be in a special way the instrument of divine purposes, that therefore their literature and history has a special value above that of other nations without believing that every scrap of that literature is an oracle of divine truth, any more than we need believe that every action recorded in that history is entitled to our moral approval. When a man refuses to accept the Christian religion on the ground that there is no evidence for the facts which that religion implies, he brings a serious and weighty objection, which deserves a serious answer And when a man refuses to accept that religion on the ground that its main doctrine is contrary to the moral justice which we assume in a Creator and Governor of the world, his objection is also serious and weighty Like the other, it deserves a serious answer, though it must be an answer in a different form from that which has to meet the critical objection Both are a good deal more than mere rhetorical points, they are direct and real objections. But the objection to Christianity that it implies a geocentric" theory of the universe, has this weakness, that it implies a quasi belief at any rate a possible belief, in the doctrine which it attacks. If it is meant, not merely as a rhetorical point but as a serious objection it really comes to this we can not believe that so much has been done for this earth as Christianity teaches, because this earth is so little, if this earth were only bigger, then we might believe it. Now it is hardly possible that this can be a serious frame of mind with any one. It implies that there is no objection either on the critical or the moral side, the Christian scheme would be credible if it applied to a race of beings inhabiting the central sun, it is incredible only because it is not likely that such a scheme should be devised on behalf of the inhabitants of one of the smaller satellites of a smaller sun. Surely nobody ever really believed or disbelieved on this kind of ground. "I will consider thy heavens, the works of thy fingers, the moon and the stars which thou hast appointed. Lord, what is man that thou visitest him, and the son of man that thou so regardest him. There is no reason to think that there was in the writer of these words any conscious reference to the special Christian theology It is God's general providence and care for man which arouses his wonder; the littleness of man, as compared with the greatness of the heavens, does not come to his mind as an objection or a difficulty, it is matter for wonder, but for purely devout wonder. And this is surely the natural state of mind.

FACTS ABOUT THE NESTUCCA

Mineral and Agricultural Wealth of Baker County—The Big Bend Country—Many Inducements Offered by La Grande.

I see very little in THE OREGONIAN from the Nestucca. You seem to have no correspondents here We think our country should be represented in your great paper as well as the balance of Oregon and the Pacific coast It is comparatively new yet and has never been advertised much, hence it is not known to a great extent outside of Tillamook and Yamhill counties It lies in the southern part of Tillamook county, some twenty miles south of the county seat

There is quite a large region known as the Nestucca country but the best of it is the valley of the Big Nestucca river This tortuous stream rises in the Coast mountains and flows westerly into the Pacific ocean but forming, in conjunction with the Little Nestucca river, what is known as the Nestucca bay This bay is some two or three miles in length from west to east, and makes a very good harbor for small vessels. Steamers come in during the summer months when there is demand for them

The Nestucca Packing Company's cannery is located here It has been only recently built They have packed only two seasons The salmon of this bay are numerous some seasons but not every season, and are an excellent fish They pack in the fall, commencing in August, and continue till the rain is over.

The soil in this valley has been formed mostly by washings from the mountain sides and by high water or freshets during the winter, and is very rich It produces abundantly everything that is adapted to the climate, so far as has been tried cereals, vegetables, fruits and grasses. The only bad feature of grain raising is the coolness of the summers, which makes the grain, that is, wheat mature slowly Barley is the principal grain crop Vegetables grow tons to the acre pastures are green nearly all the year, and we get from two to four tons of good hay to the acre every year.

This country is not nearly all settled yet. There are still thousands of acres of government land Of course, the best is always taken first, but there is some good land to be taken yet This will, some time, be a good dairy country There is no reason why it should not. It is also good for bees There is considerable honey produced here some seasons Bees do well

Woods is the principal town It is a small village, half a mile or more from the beach. It has two stores, a postoffice, sawmill, the simplicity beehive factory hotel blacksmith shop, stable, etc., and is a favorite place of resort in the summer time.

Plenty of fine pasture, hay and oats in the country, and everything to make travelors and tourists feel at home and comfortable Many pleasure-seekers find their way in here every summer

BAKER COUNTY.

Its Agricultural as Well as Its Mineral Resources Set Forth.

BAKER CITY, May 25.

Baker county has at all times been a good field for enterprising, industrious men. There are no poor people here All men, of whatever class or occupation, are in comfortable circumstances and many are wealthy Since the discovery of gold in 1862 this has been a prosperous county, and the output of gold has been as certain and profitable as the returns from any other legitimate business Mining is not a mere gamble, but is carried on with as much system and certainty as any other legitimate business enterprise. That the quartz mines of this section are a success is attested by the fact that expert mining men, after the most careful examination, have put thousands of dollars into mining operations in this county

But it is not mining alone that should attract people here There is also some of the finest agricultural land in Oregon. The claim is made that the soil will raise larger crops of grain than any county in Oregon The drawback for years to agriculture has been want of water for irrigating The seasons for four years, except last year have changed this, for we have had an abundance of rain and bountiful harvests More than this, recent experiments have demonstrated that a full supply of water can be obtained by means of artesian wells. Such wells have made revolutions in places where discovered, and this county will be no exception

Thomas B Lothean, a noted mining man of Denver is in the Greenhorn district, looking at the Worley and other promising property of that section of our county

T Gilbert and J R Bowick, of the Monumental, report a very rich strike west of Baker City some forty miles The ledge is well defined and an average assay shows it to contain $196 per ton, mostly silver.

Bullion is coming into town daily from the smaller mines surrounding our city The owners the Phoenix, near Robinsonville bringing in 137 ounces of gold, the result of two weeks' run with an arasta.

The Eureka and Excelsior, of Cracker creek, are preparing the mill site and working the road preparatory to moving their machinery from this place to the mine.

Numerous real estate sales are reported during the week just passed, which indicates that capitalists are not afraid to invest their money in Baker City.

Major Reese a capitalist of St. Louis, is registered at the Arlington It is reported that the major and Thomas B. Lothean are negotiating for the purchase of the Basley ledge. If mine owners could be induced to "let go" and allow men of capital and experience to "take hold," our mines would be producing dollars where they are not producing cents now.

THE BIG BEND COUNTRY.

Portland Soon to Have Direct Connection by Means of the River Boats and a Railroad.

ORONDO, Douglas County, W. T, May 22.—The march of civilization is upon the Big Bend country. The immigrants coming this year have more or less capital and are looking for opportunities to better their future financial condition and realize substantial homes.

The steamer City of Ellensburgh is now running regularly twice a week up and down the Columbia river—starting from Rock Island rapids, thence landing at Wenatha, Orondo, Chelan, Methow and Okanogan. The company are showing redoubled energy and enterprise this year. They have put in new warehouses at Rock Island, Orondo and Okanogan Captain Z J Hatch, the general manager, is building a new steamer for the upper river, 165 feet long, with 32 foot beam and 18 feet diameter of wheel. She will have two 18 by 64 inch engines, with 6 foot stroke, which will give great propelling power, as she is to be only from 14 to 16 inch draft. They are to build a portage wagon road at once around Rock Island rapids and run one steamer below and the other above the rapids, connecting with the wagon road from Port Eaton to Ellensburgh.

We have reliable information that Thomas L. Nixon, the president of the Tacoma, Ellensburgh & Conconully Railroad Navigation Company has succeeded in New York in floating the stock of the company The railroad from Ellensburgh to Port Eaton is to be pushed through at once This will revolutionize the transportation question of the Big Bend by giving an all rail and steamer route when the Central Washington railroad has completed their line from Davenport to Okanogan river, besides connecting Orondo with the mining districts of Conconully and Ruby City

Lime works have been established at Orondo and also near Wenatchee, which now produce the finest quality of diamond lime Marble quarries and brick yards are to be established at Orondo—the brick is now in course of construction The water power has been improved and a roller mill is being put up. Copious rains of late insured good crops in the Big Bend The entire valley is being rapidly settled and it is contemplated by Thomas Cannon to erect a saw mill thereon the coming fall and winter

The completion of the railroad from Ellensburgh to Port Eaton, in connection with the line of steamers on the Columbia, will give Portland the first direct connection with the Big Bend and it will prove an advantage of mutual benefit.

LA GRANDE.

Money Plentiful and Business Better Than Ever Before

The good effect of the recent effort by the La Grande Board of Trade to cause the public to know of the golden opportunities lying unseized in the "Eden of Oregon"—Grande Ronde valley and Union county—is being felt at this place As a result, we find business far better than ever before, money more plentiful, and times far better Merchants of La Grande who have previously employed one to two clerks have doubled their force The business of the La Grande National bank is so large as to require two men to perform the labor done by one man a year ago and the bank is thinking seriously of employing a third man One year ago we had only one fruit and vegetable store and that could barely subsist; now we have four, and all doing a rushing business One year ago La Grande could not support a bakery and such a thing was considered an unprofitable and unnecessary enterprise, now we have in successful and profitable operation two. We have six hotels, all crowded to their fullest capacity, and two restaurants doing splendedly

One year ago La Grande was considered a small, one-horse town, inconveniently located, and a poor business point To day she is considered the "genii city" of the Inland Empire, and the commercial center and metropolis of a large and productive section.

Letters are daily being received by capitalists in the East seeking to invest money at this place. Manufactories are being worked up, and life and energy is seen in every line of business. No place in Eastern Oregon has enjoyed such an activity in real estate as La Grande The demand for good, large lots is so great that a new addition to the town has just been surveyed, embracing a tract of thirty five acres, and another addition will be put upon the market forthwith

The La Grande Water Works Company finds the present system too small and insufficient to supply the demands of the city, so the company will at once erect a large reservoir and lay miles of additional pipe

The school district finds the present school house too small and crowded for the present needs It was thought, when built three years ago large enough for all purposes for the next ten years, but since then the city has more than doubled in population and a new schoolhouse is the next public improvement necessary When there were at that time three and four teachers employed who could easily do the work, now six and seven are required, and they have their hands full

La Grande is determined not to be behind in patriotism so she will celebrate in grand style on the Fourth of July The necessary committees were appointed several weeks ago, and the necessary funds have been raised

Had La Grande rested on its oars and not published to the world the wonderful magnitude of its resources developed and undeveloped, the extent and nature of the untold wealth, would the Union Pacific Railroad Company have included this place in the list of its 'most important points on the line of road to the Northwest? Would the immigrant seeking a home in the far West, where he could live sheltered from fierce cold and destructive cyclones have been told that 'La Grande is in the midst of a valuable and productive agricultural country,' and Grand Ronde valley the 'Eden of Oregon,' been given this publicity? Certainly not

Mossbackism is waning in Union county Those who have sought to retard the growth of the country who have feared competition in business, and who have minds and views so narrow and contracted as not to see what a grand glorious future is in store for this wonderful country are beginning to get awakened When it is too late they may awake to the fact that they have killed the goose that could have laid the golden egg

We want competition in every line of business We want the many large bodies of land now held by bonded speculators cut up into small farms and settled by a class of energetic zealous, hard working farmers of the nineteenth century and not owned and controlled by a few sleepy mossbacks of a hundred years ago

We want push, vim and an energy that can and will surmount every obstacle We must exhibit a degree of public spirit that realizes that money is not made by a per cent profit on goods sold or manufactured alone, but by their enhancement in value Property that was offered in La Grande two and three years ago for $100 $200, or $300 is now worth its thousands. What makes it so? Confidence in the future greatness of the country, a firm belief that we have the city that will eventually be the queen city of the Inland Empire and a convincing knowledge that no place in Oregon to-day has a brighter future and a more successful outlook than La Grande

LANE COUNTY.

A Glance at the Inducements it Offers to Home-Seekers.

EUGENE, May 17

We have been carefully studying up the resources of the Willamette valley and looking at its advantages, and have arrived at the conclusion that Eugene City and Lane county occupy a place in the first rank. The newcomer from the East finds here a settled society, well established churches, good schools some manufactories established and more coming, also a pushing, stirring, as well as moral and educated class of people, who welcome all good people who come and join them in building up and properly developing the many advantages naturally formed in this section of the state.

Land is plenty of good quality and cheap. Can be bought for from $3 to $250 per acre, according to improvement and distance from the city of Eugene

We find as many improvements going on in Eugene and around it as in any other place in the valley and we find, too, that the improvements are all of a permanent character

A fine, large hotel is being arranged for, and will soon be commenced. This is one of the improvements much needed and a second building for the same purpose would be a profitable investment for somebody

The Minnesota hotel will soon be wheeled up street two blocks, to make way for a handsome three-story block Contracts are either let or being let for several fine brick buildings or parts of blocks.

The university is a great benefit to the city in its race for growth and prosperity. The fact that it is free next year and thereafter, will bring 100 students where ten are now attending The faculty are alive to a large development in the future and are going to be ready to take care of all who may come.

The climate of this part of the valley seems to us as nearly perfect as it seems possible to be, and must suit the most fastidious stickler for perfection, besides it is as healthful as any part of the great West, and as cheap a place to live as any man could ever hope to find

The fact is, if the settler is wanting to secure an almost perfect home for a few hundred or a few thousand dollars, he can find it at or near Eugene, Lane county.

PROSPEROUS CENTRALIA.

A Remarkable Increase of Business and Population.

CENTRALIA, W T, May 25—The daily increase of business in our town is very noticeable Four months ago there was one light express running in Centralia, which hauled about all the goods from the depot and did the delivering for the town. To-day six wagons are kept busy

There are many new buildings going up, and a much better class of buildings than was formerly erected. The brick is being delivered on the ground for the new bank, and work will commence soon. M. Warren is putting up a two-story business house in Railroad addition, opposite the large hotel Work has been temporarily suspended on the hotel, the plasterers having drawn all their pay for the job and absconded to parts unknown. The proprietors having bonds from them for the completion of the contract in a certain time, will wait until their time is up, when they will employ plasterers and complete the building. The carpenter work is all done.

Mr. Adams, the depot agent, reports receipts for last month from all sources, $2800 against $2200 for the same month last year.

Large amounts of household goods are sold daily by our merchants. The hardware and furniture stores are reaping a rich harvest.

Our population numbers now close to 2000. When the assessor completed his work some time since we had 1700 people. Quite a number were missed, being newcomers just arrived, and the increase since will swell the number to just about 2000 people.

Work is progressing rather slowly on the seminary grounds, but plans and specifications are being made, and as soon as these can be had work will commence in earnest.

Parties here are negotiating for machinery for starting a sash and door factory This will be a good investment for the proprietors, and something the town much needs.

Grading has commenced on the Gray's Harbor railroad west of the Northern Pacific line, and in a short time a large force of men will be at work.

The Port Townsend surveyors reached the iron of the Northern Pacific railroad just south of the depot here, but where the line will be located permanently is not known, but it is supposed that it will be in the North end part of town, and a union depot for the use of the three roads will be located there.

The saw and shingle mills in the vicinity of Centralia are all doing a good business, in fact, all branches of business are prospering and growing

FROM CHEHALIS.

A Number of Timber Land Entries To Be Contested by Settlers.

CHEHALIS, May 26—Several parties are at present making careful examinations of the cedar timber available from Chehalis, with the intention of at once erecting a large shingle mill, with a capacity of at least 150,000 per day, if the raw material can be found. It is needless to say that there is an abundance of cedar timber on both the Chehalis and Newaukum rivers, which can be easily floated to this point. As the shipping facilities are No. 1, this is certainly as good a place as manufacturers could desire to locate.

Several settlers from the South Fork of the Chehalis have gone to Vancouver to contest the final proof and purchase of timber lands in that locality. There is no question about the claims being timber land, but the contest will be made on the ground that the applicants have not complied with the law in making a personal investigation as to their character. It is notorious that hundreds of claims were filed on by 'dummies" manipulated in the interest of timber land grabbers, and have never been nearer the claims than the railroad. If they make proof there will be considerable perjury to answer for

E. P Collett, of Napavine, was convicted yesterday of assault and battery and sentenced to a fine of $50 and costs. The complainant was J. N. Murphy, Collett's brother-in law

The G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps are preparing to appropriately celebrate Memorial day.

Two new business houses were commenced to-day, and about half a dozen are in progress. The Odd Fellows have let a contract for the erection of a new hall 24x55 feet on Second street, which will be put up immediately The lower floor is to be rented for business purposes. There is not a vacant room of any kind in town.

BOISE CITY.

Penitentiary Prisoners Utilized for Territorial Improvements—A Sewerage System.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, May 26—The foundations of John Lemp's new brick block are nearly completed to-day. The building will front 100 feet on Main street, height 50 feet, depth 80 feet, a solid and compact structure in every way.

Superintendent Force is using the heretofore idle prisoners at the penitentiary to quarry stone for the new improvements at the capitol grounds. The legislature authorized the expenditure of $14,000 for this purpose.

Plans for doubling the size of the penitentiary buildings, near this city, are in the hands of the supervising architect at Washington. Congress has authorized the immediate expenditure of $25,000 on this building

The city council are planning a system of grades and sewerage, which it will require a good deal of money to carry out, but the comfort and health of the community resulting will justify a very liberal appropriation in this direction.

Officers at Boise Barracks are advertising for bids to excavate certain springs in the mountain side, one mile from this city. Surgeon Girard has convinced the military authorities that an abundant supply of absolutely pure water can be found at the base of the mountains.

Scrofula, humors, boils, pimples, and all impurities of the blood are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Interest Now Turns Toward Behring Sea.

IS ENGLAND PLAYING A SLY GAME?

A Probability That a Large Squadron Will Cruise in Those Waters—Three More Cruisers To Be Built.

WASHINGTON, May 26—On account of a lack of information as to the exact purpose of the cruise the state department is not disposed to say much for publication in regard to the news that the British war ships Swift-sure, the admiral's flag ship, and the Amphion have been ordered to cruise in Alaskan waters These vessels are to leave Esquimalt in the latter part of the month for Sitka.

It is admitted to be a novelty for British vessels to enter Alaskan waters, but unless their instructions are of a belligerent character, the cruise may not have grave significance It is likely to result, however, in a little more circumspection on the part of our cruisers toward what the people and department call the 'British pirates than would otherwise be the case, just as the presence of the North Atlantic squadron of the United States navy on the fishing grounds during the fishing season secured better treatment for American fishermen

A gentleman who understands the foreign relations of the United States thoroughly, intimated that the activity of the British government might be merely a trap set for the state department. American diplomats argue that the taking of seals outside the three mile limit can be prohibited on other grounds than that the sea is absolutely closed The habits of seals justify the United States government in maintaining that the seals belong to the American continent The animals have a local habitat, from which they go out to sea, but to which they always return.

The doctrine of a closed sea, which is asserted by inference in the president's proclamation, is one which Great Britain would be very glad, it is said, to have set up as a general proposition It would enable her to close the Bay of Fundy, for instance, and strengthen her position in various parts of the world. She may be willing to forego the claims of vessels illegally capturing seals in Behring sea, if she can bring the United States government to an explicit declaration in favor of this doctrine

THREE NEW CRUISERS.

They Must Show a Speed of Eighteen Knots and Will Cost $750,000 Each

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The navy department has issued proposals for the construction of three new cruisers for the navy, under authority of the act of congress of September 7, 1888. Bids will be opened August 1, 1889

These vessels are to be of 2000 tons displacement, and are to exhibit a maximum speed of at least eighteen knots an hour for four consecutive hours. They are to be finished within two years from the date of contract, and payments will be made in twenty equal installments, as the work progresses

The cost of the vessels, excluding any premium that may be paid for increased speed, and the cost of armament, but not including equipment, is limited to an amount not exceeding $700,000 each

The proposals are divided into four classes, the first being for the vessel, in accordance with plans of the secretary of the navy the second for the plans of the contractor, the third for the secretary's hull and the contractor's machinery, and the fourth for the contractor's hull and the secretary's machinery This last class is an innovation in naval construction.

MORE WAR VESSELS FOR THE NORTH.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 26.—The Examiner's Washington special says In view of the fact that the English men-of-war Swiftsure and Amphion have been despatched to Behring sea to protect Canadian vessels engaged in illicit sealing it has been decided to send the Adams to Sitka, and she will leave in company with the Iroquois in a few days. The revenue cutter Rush has already left, and the Bear will also sail this week. The Thetis will join them at Ounalaska.

The government is determined to protect the interests of the United States in Behring sea, and Secretary Blaine said to-night that the laws would be fully enforced Our claim that Behring sea is a mare clausum is substantiated by Russia, from which government we purchased Alaska in 1867. Having such support, the government is not disposed to brook any interference from England or any other power, regarding the enforcement of our laws in that locality.

CUPID AND SENATOR ALLISON.

How the Reported Prospective Marriage Is Regarded in Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 26—It is said the announcement of the marriage of Senator Allison, of Iowa, to Miss Theresa Stoughton lacks authoritative verification. Those who have been most intimately associated with the senator are disposed to regard the story as a romance, but upon the simple ground that he has never shown the slightest indication of a tender feeling pointing toward matrimony. It does not seem to be known, even by the senator's friends, that his alleged prospective bride is now a guest with the other ladies of the senatorial Canadian trade relations expedition, now in the Northwest. Miss Stoughton is an exceedingly beautiful lady, about 30 years of age, and daughter of a former patent attorney of Washington. The marriage announcement fixes the time for next fall. Since the death of his wife, the senator's household has been presided over by her foster mother, Mrs. Grimes.

Pension and Postal Notes.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—A pension has been granted David O. Doggett, of Washington territory

Jennette Murchie has been appointed postmistress at Wasco, Wasco county, Or., vice W. M. Barnett, resigned.

Private Secretary to Blaine.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Louis A. Dent, of this city, has been appointed private secretary to Secretary Blaine, vice Thomas S. Sherman, appointed consul to Liverpool. Dent was formerly private secretary to Congressman Hitt, of Illinois.

Bayard To Be Married in June.

WASHINGTON, May 26—The marriage of ex Secretary Bayard to Miss Mary Willing Clymer is announced to take place June 12 in this city.

FROM MONTESANO.

The Logging Industry of Gray's Harbor—Improvement Notes—Etc.

MONTESANO, W. T, May 23.

From present indications there will be no very great activity in the logging industry on the harbor this season, as the prevailing dullness in the lumber market limits the demand for logs. Of course this seeming dullness is not dullness at all, but a lull after a commercial cyclone. The wind cannot always howl, nor the waves continuously roll mountain high; neither can trade and business and human effort remain constantly at a high tension.

With the natural increase of our 60,000,000 well fed, well clothed and well housed people, and the foreign "invasion" of at least a half million a year, seeking homes in a constantly diminishing territory, the forward movement must begin soon again, and will necessarily rage with greater fury The movement West has just begun, and the millions who are to pluck the orange and prune, the grapes and boom corner lots in fair California and other countries of the great Southwest must have lumber for cottages and other improvements. The pig-tailed son of Confucious is beginning to prefer a lumber cottage to a bamboo camp, and in other lands the cheapness, cleanliness and comfort of a light wooden house is awakening the drowsy world to the desire for a change.

There is no fear of a prolonged dullness in the lumber industry of Puget sound or Gray's Harbor, for in less than five years the making of wooden cottages, to be shipped and put together in all parts of the world, will be a leading industry in this wonderful West. Very soon houses of certain pattern will be made and packed like unfinished furniture, or like machines or carriages or wagons, and shipped to regular dealers to all parts of the civilized world. This is no fancy, no prophecy, but the logical results of coming events.

Timber in this country must then necessarily become very valuable and the lumber and wooden industries must necessarily develop very rapidly, and this means the rapid development of every other industry.

With the contracts let for the completion of the Puget Sound & Gray's Harbor railroad to its terminal ground on our beautiful water front and the depot located the right of way secured for the Centralia & Gray's Harbor road, and its early construction assured, with the Port Townsend & Southern road under course of construction and others knocking at the gates of Montesano the key to the peerless Gray's harbor basin, it would seem strange, indeed, if our people did not begin to feel a pride in their local importance.

Prominent railroad men are investing heavily in Montesano and other towns on the harbor, and a large sawmill is to be among the early improvements of this city.

As long as there were doubts about the early completion of one or two railroads there was no great activity in building, but now the air is deafening with the clatter of hammers and the nerve-crushing music of the saw. Some twenty pretty cottages and one beautiful church are well under way, and some fine residences are being erected. The new Odd Fellows hall is a beautiful structure and is just taking on its second coat of paint. Judge Scofield is erecting a large business block, and Messrs. Fenner, Silsby & Coy have completed the plans for a grand new hotel, to cost from $10,000 to $20,000. Other improvements are promised, among which is a street railway. This, I am informed, has been determined upon, and soon our gallants will be hanging on the straps of a slow car while the ladies will occupy the seats with their bundles and their poodle dogs.

The stages are crowded every evening, and prices in real estate are feverish, with some boom tendencies Property here is yet low, but a rapid advance is sure to come in the early future.

The inaccessibility of this place has kept it back, though its great resources have been known to few. The world will not believe it, until the train comes. Then thousands of tardy ones who might have laid the foundation for a handsome fortune will say, "I might have been rich "

District court is now in session, but I believe the august court excites less interest than the street corner candy maker, who is positively here for the last day, and has been for a week.

The new steamer Montesano is not yet on her regular trips, but will be in a few days

Artists are here making a sketch of our city, and this of course means some advertising in the future.

"HOW SLEEP THE BRAVE!"

Fitting Memorial Services Held Last Evening in the City Churches.

Appropriate Addresses Delivered by Revs. Kummer, Brown, Cline and Others—Large Attendance—Decorations, Etc.—In East Portland.

How sleep the brave who sink to rest,
By all their country's wishes blest!
* * * * * * *
By fairy hands their knell is rung;
By forms unseen their dirge is rung.
—Collins's Ode.

The bullet comes—and either
A desolate hearth may see;
And God alone to-night knows where
The vacant place may be!
The dread that stirs the peasant
Thrills nobles' hearts with fear;
Yet above selfish sorrow
Both hold their country dear.
—Adelaide A. Proctor.

"Lessons of the War."

Appropriate memorial services were held last evening, pursuant to announcement, in the various churches of Portland, East Portland and Albina. The attendance was unusually large, the services beautiful and impressive, and the interior of the churches fittingly decorated with flowers, flags and other emblems.

"TRUE PATRIOTISM."

ADDRESS OF REV. A. J. BROWN TO THE FIRST REGIMENT O. N. G.

The First regiment, Oregon National Guard, attended a special regimental service by Rev Arthur J. Brown, chaplain of the regiment, at the chapel of the First Presbyterian church last evening. This is the first time in its history that the regiment has turned out as a body to attend divine service.

The regiment marched up from their armory preceded by the drum corps, officers and men wearing side arms, and filed into their seats at the front, the flags being placed in the corners on each side of the platform. The organ, reading desk, etc., were draped with flags and beautifully decorated with evergreens and cut flowers.

The chaplain wore his clerico-military uniform, and his address was listened to with marked interest by the members of the regiment and their friends, who filled the chapel completely.

SUMMARY OF THE ADDRESS.

Taking as his text verses 5 and 6 of the 137th psalm, and showing that the words were an expression of the loftiest and purest patriotism, Mr. Brown said:

The occasion reminds us of an ever-memorable expression of patriotism. Twenty-eight years ago a cannon shot was fired over the blue waters of Charleston harbor, and its reverberations rolled on till they filled the land from Maine to Oregon. They told of danger to the republic, and ere they had died away a nation sprung to arms. In every city and hamlet was seen the hasty mustering of troops, and in an incredibly short time hurried good-byes were said, and long columns of boys in blue went marching southward. Awful was the struggle which followed. For four years, which seemed interminable, it raged. Cities were ruined, fields devastated, treasure and blood poured out like water and the land filled with weeping widows and fatherless children. Only God knows the agony of those years. And then, just as we were fondly hoping that the worst was over, came the news that the president had been slain. Men said that the cup was full.

But at last it was over; at last it was settled that the United States are not two nations, but one, and that no slave should dwell on American soil, and, back from the South, the long columns came marching home; but not as gaily as they had marched forth. The drums were battered and old, the flags were in tatters, uniforms were ragged and stained, faces were haggard and [illegible] scarred. Some hobbled on one leg, others carried an empty sleeve, while thinned ranks spoke sadly of distant fields, where many a comrade peacefully lay on "The field of his fame fresh and gory."

Now we are at peace. Our land is prospering, our barns filled with plenty. We are not called upon to fight for an imperiled country, but does our country require nothing of us? My Brother Kummer speaks to-night to men who represent the generation which fought.

THE WAR OF THE REBELLION.

I address men who, for the most part, like myself, belong to the generation following If he may appropriately remind veterans of a glorious past, I may, with equal propriety, remind the young men of the duty they owe their country. That duty is first to show an intelligent and patriotic interest in all that pertains to their country's welfare. Such patriotism is indispensable in a government like ours. The wisdom of our forefathers vested power in representatives elected by the people. It was a splendid conception, but its underlying theory was that the people should be actively concerned in affairs of state, and that from the whole body of the people the purest and best citizens should be selected as representatives The people are sovereign, and, unless the sovereign rules, how shall the nation prosper? And yet, incredible as it might appear to a foreigner, there is manifested an ever to public concerns on the part of the better classes It has become the habit to speak disrespectfully of officials and legislative bodies. Thousands of our most influential citizens never attend the primaries where standard bearers are determined upon. Many of our best men will not accept office even if nominated. They reply that they have business or professional interests which yield them a larger income than the office named, and which would suffer from their absence It never occurs to them that there is any patriotic duty involved. It is simply a matter of convenience and money, and this is not the worst for the young men are educated to the same indifference Our colleges assume a knowledge of American history and institutions, which as a matter of fact, their students do not possess, and graduate them conversant with Rome, but ignorant of the United States, familiar with Marathon and Thermopylæ, but knowing little of Lexington and Gettysburg. Those who are not sent to colleges are usually trained with sole reference to business. Where one father teaches his son to love and honor and serve his country, ninety-nine teach their sons that the sole end of life is the almighty dollar. Herein is a

COLLOSSAL DANGER.

It is common in enumerating our national perils to speak of intemperance, and Mormonism, and impurity, and Sabbath desecration, and kindred evils. But more serious than all others, it seems to me, is the danger of indifference to government on the part of the better classes, for this poisons the foundation from which purifying streams might flow. If the moral and intelligent people of the land were actively patriotic, think you the settlement of these questions would be so difficult? It is because these men are lukewarm, because they either have no opinions or refuse to assert them, that the difficulty is so great. Primaries are left to the control of the unprincipled, and absentees must choose between meekly casting the ballot the boss has "fixed" or lose their vote. The saloon is well nigh omnipotent, and wire-pullers hold high carnival. Why is it that so many of our great cities are ruled by the vicious? Why is it that the term "ward politician" has become a synonym for corruption and mendacity? Why is it that unworthy men so often sit in halls of legislation? Why is it that our newspapers are filled with accounts of jobs and asylum horrors, and that there are men to-day in penitentiaries and whole colonies of refugees in Canada who ought to be in penitentiaries, who are regularly chosen at primaries and to represent them in governmental affairs? Why is it that scores of evils flourish unchecked, and that law and order leagues have to fight desperately, and with few supporters, to accomplish reforms which should be easy of solution? Why, if not because of the apathy of the better classes, the lack of a true patriotic spirit?

I have the honor to address a regiment which represents the best young blood of this proud city. It is chiefly composed of young men of intelligence and education and social position of men who will largely control the future of Portland and of the Pacific Northwest May I not urge them to a patriotic interest in their nation's welfare, to a study of our history, our ideas and our institutions, and to an active participation in all that pertains to the public weal? Let us who wear our country's uniform be loyal and true, neither seeking nor avoiding the responsibilities of office, and, like the Jew of old, ever 'preferring Jerusalem above our chief joy.' But this patriotism needs the admixture of

to make it of the highest quality. I do not use the word Christian in a sectarian sense. I speak not now of Protestantism, nor Catholicism, nor of any other ism. I simply speak of the common Christianity which recognizes God as the supreme disposer of human events and the source of all moral obligation. In this sense I affirm that our patriotism should be regulated by Christian considerations, and should have reference to the laws of God. For this is

A CHRISTIAN LAND

The men who crossed the sea to find a home in the New World were Christian men. "They were Puritans, Huguenots, Scotch, Scotch-Irish, Dutch, and German Presbyterians, Quakers, Episcopalians and Roman Catholics, but all alike Christians. Beyond any other equally various and numerous set of men known in human history, they were earnest Christians and they came here for the very purpose of crystalizing their faith in imperishable institutions." The nation was born and nurtured in Christianity. The common law is based on Christian principles From the beginning Christianity has been recognized by Sabbath laws and official chaplains, and by Thanksgiving days. To-day about one-half of our adult population is composed of actual communicants of Christian churches, and Sunday school scholars and adherents swell the number to an overwhelming majority. This is a Christian land by virtue of its foundation, its history, and its preponderance of Christian people, and it is only just that those who repudiate Christianity for themselves individually should recognize the fact that, though we do not have a national church, we do have a national religion.

But whether this be admitted or not, it must be admitted that every nation is bound to obey the laws of God. He is sovereign, and his sway is absolute and immutable. Man is no more free to

than he is to disobey the laws of the state. In either case, he may do so if he wishes, but if he does, he exposes himself to retribution. It is true, church and state are separate, and we wish them to remain so; but separation does not involve immunity from religious obligation. The state has nothing to do with the church, but it does not follow that it has nothing to do with God. "The state is the people themselves, acting in their organic capacity through the machinery of law. It is self evident, therefore, that the state or collective body must have all the qualities which belong to its constituent members. If the people are rational, the state will be rational; if moral, then moral; and none the less, if the people be religious, will the state they compose be religious It is simply absurd that a man can be thoroughly convinced that God is a moral governor, who will demand an account of the deeds done in the body, as an individual, and then be perfectly oblivious of the existence and of

THE CLAIMS OF GOD

As soon as he begins to act politically as a citizen. There cannot be two laws for Christians—one to govern the relations of individuals, and the other the relations of nations" Men may not do in their corporate capacity as a state what they may not do as individuals. "They must make and execute laws in conformity to the known will of God" or be adjudged disobedient. What shall we say, then, of our responsibility for this Sabbath desecration, this tampering with divorce, these open saloons, these public brothels? How shall we defend many public acts and laws and usages which contravene the commands of God? Have we not as a people been allowing an irreligious minority a license to which they are not in reason or charity entitled, and by our acquiescence not only permitted a nation of Christian people to do unchristian things, but brought ourselves into just condemnation? I do not say that we have a right to make any man religious—to his own Master he standeth or falleth, but I do say that we

HAVE A RIGHT TO DEMAND

Of the irreligious man, at least an outward respect for the laws of God; that we have a right to say to him Whether you will serve your Maker or not is for you to determine, but this is a Christian community, and you shall not violate our Sabbaths by your bands of music, your games of ball, your open stores; nor shall you injure the public morals by your brothels and saloons, and gambling hells.

If the land is endangered by political indifference, much more is it endangered by this moral indifference. History has clearly shown the indissoluble connection between national prosperity and national righteousness. I look back and I see proud Babylon's fall I see haughty Judea in the dust; I see imperial Rome, once mistress of the world, in ruins; I see scattered thickly o'er Time's shore the wreck of empires and of thrones, and high over them all I see written in letters of fire and blood, "The nations that shall not serve thee shall perish, yea, that nation shall be utterly wasted."

Comrades, let us, the young men of this city, remember that God reigns, and that no prosperity can be enduring which is not the result of his blessing. Let us seize his purposes concerning our land, and to the extent of our influence apply them. Let us remember that the strength of a nation lies, not so much in the invincibleness of its fortifications, as in the character of its citizens. Let us, as members

OF THE NATIONAL GUARD,

Exemplify a Christian patriotism. "You," said Colonel Lee, "and not the regulars, are the true army of the United States, and the one on which it would have to depend in time of peril" Then be loyal. Be proud of the uniform you wear, and allow no unworthy or disloyal man to disgrace it. The responsibility is fast falling upon us. The veterans of the war are dropping rapidly out of the ranks. The youngest are getting gray. They who escaped the shot and shell of battle are falling thickly before the fire of the great enemy, Death. How they go. Not a day passes but that the

"The muffled drum's sad roll has beat
The soldier's last tattoo."

Hats off, gentlemen! for yonder come the riderless steeds, the reversed arms, the funeral dirge! Something is here for tears. The men who saved their country are going to their long home. Sound the retreat. They who never fled before are vanquished now. Fire the parting volley. Fill up the grave. Lights out. Let

"Glory guard, with solemn round,
The bivouac of the dead."

CONCLUSION.

But listen! The ground trembles with the measured tramp, tramp, of a great host. Look! Yonder comes a mighty army. The step is firm and elastic. The movement is rhythmic and strong They keep coming, till as far as the eye can reach are solid masses of men. Who are they? They are the young men of the republic, ready as were their fathers to fight for their country, if need be; ready, if fighting be not needed, to show that

"Peace hath her victories,
No less renowned than war."

In them is the nation's hope; in their purity and patriotism her defense. Comrades, shall we not exult in our country's call?

Our fathers to their graves have gone
Their strife is past,—their triumph won;
But sterner trials wait the race
Which rises in their honored place,—
A moral warfare with the crime
And folly of an evil time.

So let it be. In God's own might
We gird us for the coming fight.
And, strong in him whose cause is ours,
In conflict with unholy powers,
We grasp the weapons he has given,—
The light, and truth, and love of heaven.

A MASTERLY TRIBUTE

DR KUMMER AT THE TAYLOR STREET M. E. CHURCH—IMPRESSIVE EXERCISES.

A memorial sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr Alfred Kummer at the Taylor street M. E. church last evening The large auditorium, both up stairs and down, began to fill rapidly at an early hour, and by the time services opened every seat was occupied A large number of chairs placed inside the chancel rail were pressed into service, thereby increasing the seating capacity to a considerable extent. Even the hall was utilized as an assembly room by those who did not have the good fortune to get inside, and quite a number were glad to find standing room there.

It is estimated that from 1200 to 1500 persons listened to the memorial discourse. Among the audience were the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who attended in a body. One hundred and fifty seats in the front part of the auditorium were reserved for the old vets, and the Women's Relief Corps.

The church was elaborately decorated for the occasion A large flag, belonging to the Grand Army posts of this city, was fastened to the organ. It was gathered in a graceful loop at the center and extended across the entire front of the organ.

The pulpit and choir railing were profusely decorated with sprigs of ivy, ferns and choice cut flowers. Wreaths of ivy were festooned about the balcony, and several large vases of ferns, and other wild flowers were ranged about the pulpit platform. The words, "Honor and Love to the Soldiers Give," in large gilt letters were suspended from a thin wire stretched across the room, just over the pulpit. The church presented a very attractive appearance.

The services opened with singing of the "Soldier's Chorus," from Gounod's opera of "Faust," by the choir This beautiful selection was admirably rendered, the choir having been specially trained for the occasion After prayer by the pastor, and responsive reading, the choir sang Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the audience joining in the chorus, 'Glory, Glory, Hallelujah, etc."

THE MEMORIAL ADDRESS.

The memorial address preached by the Rev Alfred Kummer, was listened to throughout with the closest attention, and several times, when the speaker's eloquence rose to a high pitch, or some particularly pathetic incident of the late war was referred to, the old Grand Army boys were seen to move about uneasily in their seats as if they could scarcely refrain from giving vent to their enthusiasm by throwing up their hats and shouting 'Battle Cries of Freedom,' which to them is a melody ever ringing in their ears.

Rev Kummer, by way of introduction, said:

There are several reasons why it is proper that such services as these should be held in this month of sunshine, of flowers, of bird song and of beauty. There can be no better reason than that we owe it to the dead, the brave "boys in blue" as we fondly call them, who cheerfully poured out their life's blood for the peace and liberties we now enjoy. If there were no other reasons to honor our dead, this were alone sufficient why such memorial services should be held to the end of time. But we owe it to the living as well to the men and women who, after a quarter of a century, are still living in our midst, and whom we all delight to honor. Some of these brave defenders of our country are here to-night, we hail you brothers, soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic, whose hearts are still beating with enthusiastic love for the old flag, whose bosoms still glow with the inextinguishable spark which fires the soul of patriots, and who are ready to-day to defend native land as you were in the stirring days of the rebellion

Again, such services are proper and necessary for their educational value, because we owe it to the young We must cultivate in the hearts of the youth the same loyalty and patriotism that glow in ours, love of native land, emotions of patriotism, pride in the "Stars and Stripes," do honor to any youth. I firmly believe in the sentiment expressed in the familiar lines by Sir Walter Scott:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said:
This is my own, my native land,
Whose heart within him ne'er hath burned
As home his footsteps he hath turned,
From wandering on a foreign strand!
If such there be, go, mark him well;
For him no minstrel raptures swell,
High though his titles, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish could claim,
Despite those titles, power and pelf,
The wretch, concentrated all in self
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And doubly dying shall go down
To the vile dust from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored and unsung."

I believe that in our homes, in our schools and colleges, in our churches, and by occasions of this kind, as did the Spartans of old, we should carefully cultivate in the hearts of the rising generation an ardent love for native land. This is all the more necessary from the cosmopolitan character of the present generations.

The speaker then briefly reviewed the events of the past quarter of a century, first speaking of the causes that precipitated the late bloody civil strife, and then of the results that have followed. The causes leading to the war he found in the different interests of the North and South, the different construction put on the constitution of the United States by the two sections of the country, the spirit of sectionalism and lack of intercourse between the two parts of the nation, and lastly, the most important of all, the slavery question. He reviewed the principal events of the war from the time the first gun was fired on Fort Sumter, April 12, 1861, to the surrender of General Lee, April 9, 1865.

In speaking of the results of the war, he referred not only to the loss of men in battle, the money expended, the stagnation in trade, and the general demoralization of all commercial activities, but with pride he pointed to the fact that the War of the Rebellion worked no harm to the morals of the soldiers, as the great military leaders of the past seemed to think all wars must.

"Shakespeare," he said, "makes Henry the Fifth, in addressing his troops, say: 'And when the blast of war blows in our ears, then imitate the action of the tiger' Bonaparte is reported to have said, 'The readiest way to govern men is by their vices, and if they have none they must be taught to contract them,' and the Duke of Wellington is credited with the remark, 'A soldier has no business with principles, or a conscience, his only business is to obey orders.'"

"But we have reason to thank God," continued the speaker, 'that the War of the Rebellion was not conducted upon such atheistic and demoralizing principles or theories. We had our Christian commission, our sanitary commissions, temperance societies, chaplains to preach the gospel, our Florence Nightingales and Sisters of Mercy and of Charity, and many a brave soldier to-day owes his life to these organizations, which sprang into being as the war advanced.

"In returning thanks and gratitude for the successful termination of the war and all that it accomplished," said the speaker, "let us not forget the women who fought at home."

The writers of war literature and war songs were also warmly advocated for a niche in memory's domain Couplets were recited from the productions of the more noted poets who found a theme in the war itself or any circumstances connected therewith.

GLOWING PERORATION.

Dr Kummer closed his splendid address with the following glowing peroration,

Then wave old flag, beloved emblem of native land. Tattered and torn you may be, pierced by the bullets of Bunker Hill and torn by the icy blasts of Valley Forge, cloud-encircled at Bull Run and Fredericksburgh, smitten for a time and dishonored by thy insulting foes, but lifting at last thy bright wings above every storm, and to-day floating in triumph on every breeze. Thy colors teach us in the red loyalty; that principles are more precious than even patriots' blood, thou art to us the price of rivers of blood as pure as ever leaped from loving hearts of loyalty; thy blue teaches us expansiveness, a charity like unto the vault of heaven; that liberty and righteousness must be where'er this banner floats; and white upon thy folds, to teach the nation's purity.

Float on, then, thou white and red and blue, a trinity of truth and beauty, the gift of heaven to freedom's home, may thy stars increase in multitude and brighten in their glory. Let me entwine thee, O our nation's pride, around the cross of Christ, meet staff for such a clinging, heaven-born vine.

Soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic, may I not ask you ever to bow your knees reverently before this cross entwined by the flag you love better than life. Remember that above the flag, above the cross is the King of all truth, your soul's King, immortal, invisible, be true to him and in the last great day of review and reward, a star-spangled crown will deck each faithful soldier's brow

AT ST. PAUL M. E. CHURCH

REV. C E. CLINE'S FITTING TRIBUTE TO THE "PATRIOT DEAD."

The announcement made that Rev. C. E Cline, pastor of St. Paul M E. church, would deliver an appropriate memorial address last evening, had the effect of drawing an unusually large and very intelligent audience. In keeping with the character of the event and nature of the exercises, the interior of the church was profusely decorated with flags and sweet flowers. The effect was beautiful and symbolic, and added much to the impressiveness of the occasion. The speaker chose for his text John xv 13:

Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life.

The address by Rev. Cline was replete with pathos, eloquence and logic. In the course of his remarks, the speaker said:

It is the design this evening to speak of our patriot dead,

Scores and hundreds of pulpits throughout the land at this time are uttering sentiments of tenderness and love for those who sleep in cemetery, swamp, cornfield, wilderness and in the sea.

In 1861, it might truly be said that we were a people unused to war. The sword had been beaten into the pruning hook, and the art of war seemed to be one that was lost.

But on Friday morning, April 12, a gun was fired on Fort Sumter from a rebel battery. That morning a deep sigh rose to heaven, and far seeing men saw a cloud rising over Charleston harbor, laden with ruin and death, such as had not visited this earth in the last thousand years. Ambition and lust of power had fired the hearts of certain gentlemen (?) of the South so that, when Abraham Lincoln was chosen president of this republic, they appealed to the sword, resolved to destroy the government, a work for which they had been secretly preparing for many years. Sworn men at the head of the commonwealth, beginning with the president himself, and including many officers of the army, were playing the role of Benedict Arnold, stealing the munitions of war, scattering the army and the navy to the ends of the earth to get it out of the way of treason. The morning of April 14, 1861, was a time calculated to stagger the strongest and wisest men.

Our arsenals were empty, our army was scattered; many of our most experienced officers were recruiting rebels, and Howell Cobb had stolen the treasury. And what was left to us? We had Almighty God—who is never on the side of treason—Abraham Lincoln, and the loyal North.

With the stars and stripes dishonored, our liberties imperilled and our manhood degraded, there was nothing left but to arm for the conflict. April 15, the call was sent out for volunteers.

The next day the Mobile Advertiser advertised for 75,000 black coffins, in which to bury each man called to quell the rebellion by President Lincoln, all proposals to come from south of Mason and Dixon's line, and to be addressed to his excellency Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederate States of America. The governors of the Southern states returned only taunts and jibes to Mr. Lincoln's call for troops. Te Deums were sung in the churches of the South over the fall of Fort Sumter, and venerable prelates pronounced a blessing upon the men who had spit upon the old flag. Then was there such a swaying of loyal hearts as this world has never beheld

The long-roll was sounded from the drum, the schrill scream of the fife was heard in city, country and village throughout the North, homes were instantly broken up, father bid wife and children good bye, sons bade their mothers farewell, and the expectant bride commanded her lover to go and be a patriot And this marvelous spectacle continued till 2,700,000 men had fallen into line in defense of the flag. Then death spread his long black wings over a once happy country, from ocean to ocean, and the rivers of the land ran red with blood

These men, who marched out to receive in their bosoms rebel shot and shell, were not "Lincoln's myrmidons," as Jeff Davis called them, nor were they "Lincoln's dogs," as Dan Voorhees declared.

They were sovereigns, they were born to be free, they were patriots, they were of noble ancestry, and it is these men whose memories we now fondly cherish. They gave all they had to give—their lives. They died not only for the preservation of the Union, but to strike the shackles from four millions of God's creatures who had for 200 years been born into the very mouth of hell. Can any man think of these tens of thousands of our patriot dead without shedding a tear? Thousands of these men who marched as privates in the ranks were capable of filling any post of responsibility and trust; and $16 a month, with the privilege of sleeping in the mud and being shot with a minie ball, or starved in Andersonville prison, was poor remuneration for the sacrifice they made. And who were these men? Genuine Americans, the German, the Scandinavian, the Englishman, the Irishman, the Welshman, the Scotchman and the African. And he who says the darkey wouldn't fight did not serve long at the front.

Nor is this all: It seemed as if the nations of the earth, when our struggle came, were seized with a fiendish determination to help destroy us And, let it be said that among all the nations, there was but one—Russia, that sympathized with our cause. The czar remained our firm friend from the beginning to the end.

We do not harbor revenge, but we must tell our sons, that England, when she thought we were in the death grapple, aided and abetted our foes. Only the Russian Bear steamed his gun boats round when they could be of use, and showed his teeth in our behalf. And well may Mr Gladstone, who wishes to die leaving a good memory behind, regret his unfriendly words in the day of our trial

But now the battle is hushed, and we strew flowers at the graves of Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, Hancock, Logan and Sheridan, with the unnumbered thousands who marched in the ranks, but now sleep in a patriot's grave. To them we owe our present unprecedented prosperity and peace

The little bird comes, now from the South,
And builds its nest in the cannon's mouth,
And nothing is heard from the big gun's throat
But the twittering wren or the blue bird's note.

"THE HONORED DEAD."

SERVICES HELD AT THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH OF EAST PORTLAND.

Memorial services were held in the First Baptist church, East Portland, last night. At an early hour the church was filled to its utmost capacity.

The members of the Sumner post, G. A. R., marched from their hall and took seats near the pulpit. Just back of the pulpit an American flag was suspended, bearing the words, "Grand Army of the Republic," which made an appropriate and pleasing appearance. In order to accommodate all, chairs were placed in the aisles, and all these were quickly occupied.

Services were begun with singing and an eloquent and touching prayer by the pastor, Rev. A. J Snodgrass, in which he breathed a spirit of thankfulness for that which the "Honored Dead" had sacrificed their lives, the fruits of which we now enjoy.

The singing was of a patriotic character and exceedingly good.

Rev. Snodgrass then read his text from the twenty-third chapter of Second Samuel, seventeenth verse: "Is not this the blood of the men that went in jeopardy of their lives?"

"We have a grand country," he said; "whose institutions have been preserved by the 'blood of those who went in jeopardy of their lives.' We are reminded of the dark days of the rebellion tonight, of the heroism they displayed on the battle-field, and we meet to night in order to preserve the memory of those who made this sacrifice, and that our children may understand from whom came the blessings they enjoy.

"Grand men they were who engaged in that great struggle. Among the grand characters that stand out, none are grander than Abraham Lincoln, who firmly held the helm of state amid disaster and discouragement, and guided it safely. Then came another magnificent character, who picked up the shattered battle lines and gave victory in place of defeat.

Under the new leader the Union army never took a back step, but it was on and on. I would like to speak of Sheridan, Hancock, Sherman, Thomas, and other noble men. Then what of the rank and file? How they toiled and suffered and died for the preservation of the Union! Under the blazing sun they faced the leaden and iron hail and sheets of flame. These men have left us a grand country, full of freedom and grand possibilities. These are what we have received from the hands of the "honored dead."

The discourse was listened to with great interest, and the services were closed with a solo, "Star Spangled Banner," by John W. Gwilt.

AT ALBINA

Union memorial services of a very interesting character were held at the M E church, Albina, last evening. The beautiful auditorium of the new church was well filled with an intelligent and representative audience

The address, which was an excellent and well deserved tribute to the soldiers of the late war, was delivered by Rev. Mr. Henderson

Special music was led by Professor Young The national airs, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" and "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean,' were rendered Also, 'Cover Them Over Tenderly" and "Sleep, Sacred Dust of Noble Dead"

MEDICAL ELECTRICITY.

The most wonderful part of man, most difficult to comprehend, perhaps, is the nervous system, which touches and controls every part of the body. Having its root in the brain, its trunk in the spine and its branches extending into and throughout every muscle, limb and organ of the animal frame, it carries either life and health or disease and death along its course.

The brain secretes a nervous fluid which is magnetic in its effects and influences. The magnetic element travels along the nerves like electricity, from the roots of the hair to the tips of the fingers, and through its telegraphic communication permeates the whole system. When the nervous fluid is deficient, or when the nerves do not properly transmit it, weakness and disease is the inevitable result. Electricity, the wonder of the age, roots the disease from its stronghold. It penetrates the secret ambush of disease and exterminates it, root and branch.

It removes the wretched symptoms of of loathsome maladies and avert their dreadful results. It relieves more agony and suffering than tongue can tell, as the following personal references will show:

In addition to these two lines the cars of the Vancouver motor line run directly through Holladay's addition from north to south. The property can also be easily reached from the "west side" by either the Southern Pacific Railroad Company's steam ferry or by the small ferries running from Portland to Albina. Some of the finest residences on the "east side" are located in this addition. PORTLAND MONDAY, MAY 27.

WIT AND HUMOR IN GREAT MEN

The New York Tribune has recently published seven columns of letters written by Horace Greeley in 1855-56, to Charles A. Dana then managing editor of the Tribune. It is remarked of these letters that they show Greeley in the unexpected light of a humorist. Nobody who ever read the Tribune in its best days would be surprised that the posthumous letters of Greeley revealed humor for satire sarcasm wit and humor were always included in Greeley's arsenal. For that matter, it may be safely affirmed that no superior man ever lived who did not possess and exercise the gift of wit and humor. It may not have been his prevailing and overpowering faculty but he had it.

When a rich but vulgar man said to Daniel Webster "That wine has been in my cellar thirty years and cost originally $2 a dozen" Webster replied "Indeed Isn't it about time to stop the interest?" That was wit, and proved the superiority of Webster to his purse proud entertainer.

So Greeley to those who knew him in private life was invariably a witty man. When he went to Europe to see the first Paris exposition he visited the Louvre and seeing Leutze's picture of "Washington Crossing the Delaware," exclaimed in nasal tones "What our American people need is a d—d good licking." An Englishman who stood by rushed to Greeley and said "I heard your remark and you are entirely right, what your countrymen need is a d—d good licking." Greeley replied "Yes. As I was saying, what we need is a d—d good licking but there don't appear to be anybody who can lick us."

Greeley once in an editorial spoke contemptuously of "young men who wasted their substance in buying champagne and Heid-ick." The next morning Greeley was asked by the "boys" in the office if he didn't know that Heidsick was only a brand of champagne, and Greeley replied "No I didn't know it, but I guess I'm the only man in the office that doesn't know it." When Judge Collamer who was physically a fine looking man passed by, Greeley said, "God Almighty never made a man as wise as Judge Collamer looks."

Greeley's wit is not surprising, since all intellectual men are witty. They may not be humorous or convivial but all men of superior intellect are witty since wit in distinction from humor, is an intellectual faculty. Falstaff said of himself "I am not only witty but I am the cause of wit in others." This may not be true in every case, but it is true to this extent that many a man who cannot make a joke can appreciate a joke and welcome the dispenser and organizer of verbal wit.

We have said that all men of brains have wit although they may lack humor. Humor seems to be more identified with the physical temperament of a man. From the gross obesity of Falstaff you expect a vulgarity you would not anticipate from the sprightly shape of Prince Hal. Shakespeare was witty because he could not help it. Cervantes was witty for the same reason. The supreme and universal excellence of Shakespeare makes him witty in every play.

FACTS ABOUT GRANT RECALLED

Time was when it was fashionable to deride the statesmanship of Grant. When he settled the Alabama claims without a war and treated Sumner's speech with the contempt it deserved Grant received no credit. When he urged the purchase of the bay of Samana as a naval station in the West Indies Sumner, Schurz and their mugwump supporters killed the project and accused the president of corrupt motives. But the years that have elapsed since Grant's death have convinced many that he was a true statesman. Take the last words in his book when he says "We should have a good navy and our sea coast defenses should be put in the finest possible condition." He further says "The money expended in a fine navy not only adds to our power but tends to prevent war in the future. Money spent on seaboard defenses is spent among our own people, and all goes back again among our people."

General Butler and Admiral Porter have become involved in a discussion that disgraces everybody named in it but General Grant. Grant made Porter admiral after the death of Farragut, and while the nomination was pending a letter from Porter was published which made Grant declare that he had lost his faith in human nature. This letter of Porter's was first published in December, 1870. Porter at first denied this letter, but when Grant demanded from him a written denial of the authorship he violently attacked Gideon Welles for publishing the letter, and wrote to Grant what the New York Sun described as one of the most abject epistles ever produced by the hand of man, declaring that he had been mentally irresponsible about the date of the letter attributed to him and in crawling phrases retracting the sentiments therein contained.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

The Chicago Tribune's Washington bureau telegraphs that President Harrison wants an extra session of congress in October. Here is a matter in which the president can get just what he wants since he is the man and the only man who can bring an extra session to pass. The Tribune's news gatherer goes on to say:

> The president has talked freely about the good that could be done by congress getting in two or three good solid months of work before the Christmas holidays. The party's policy could be shaped definitely on the tariff and other subjects and the congressmen get through their work and be in their districts by this time next year ready to prepare for the elections in the fall which will be the test of the popularity of the new administration. Besides this the organization should be effected as early as possible as it is of great importance to the republican party. This, however is more likely to prevent an extra session than to bring one about. The two seats that the democratic governor of West Virginia stole outright for his party cut down the republican majority to three. With so narrow a margin the democratic minority could break a quorum every day from October to November. At least two republican members one from the East and one from the West are in such bad health that it is doubtful if they will ever again take their seats in the house. Neither is likely to resign in order that a successor may be elected, and when congress meets the best that can be done for them is to get pairs. Their absence will be a temptation for the filibusters to break a quorum constantly and as one of the first things to be done after electing a speaker will be to change the rules so that the majority can legislate there is certain to be obstruction. The prevailing sentiment among the republican leaders is all for an extra session in October but they recognize the practical difficulties in the way, and their advice is generally against calling congress together till the Northwestern territories which will soon be states elect their members and give the republicans a fair working majority. This cannot be done till November.

The hopes revived in the hearts of the oppressed of Russia through the death of Count Tolstoi, late minister of the interior of that empire, have been destroyed by the declaration of the czar that his successor will be animated by the same principles that made the name of Tolstoi infamous. These "principles dictated a policy of repression and espionage throughout the schools of the empire, the object of which was to make education as ineffectual as possible and to so overburden the young minds of the common people as to leave them incapable of indulging in revolutionary theories. As a result of this policy, every schoolroom in Russia became a torture chamber. This system containing, as it did, the essence of cruelty, be kept up from 1866 to 1886, when the pressure of popular indignation forced the czar to relieve him. It is no wonder that an autocrat who sanctions methods of repression so diabolical should live in constant dread of assassination, that his empress is insane from apprehension of calamity, and that the voice of rejoicing is heard throughout the empire when the death of the dert executor of the tyrant's will is announced.

TOO MUCH MEDICINE.

Dr John Blackmer, of Springfield Mass in a paper devoted to this subject asserts that the people of this country generally take too much medicine and adds that could the opinion of medical men of every school upon this subject be obtained it would support this assertion. It is a fact that the more thoroughly educated physicians of all schools give far less medicine than they did twenty years ago and yet the wealth acquired in the drug business demonstrates conclusively that much more medicine is taken now than then. This leads to the inevitable conclusion that self medication is far more extensive than it was at that period.

The memory of people in middle life runs back to the time when self medication was confined to the domain of such simples as grew in the kitchen garden or to the well known roots and herbs of the pastures, gathered and dried in season as specifics for colds, coughs rheumatism and such common ailments. Now it extends to quinine, morphine, cathartic pills and "bitters," one or more of these things being a staple in almost every household and the two first having acquired the domain of "habit" in hundreds of persons. Of the patent nostrums, whose name is legion, it can truthfully be said that they are taken by the gallon. It is estimated that the amount of these "remedies," so called, consumed by the people is equal to ten times the medicine prescribed by all of the physicians in the country.

The number of those addicted to the opium habit is enormous and when it is considered that this habit becomes a vice of the most formidable and hopeless character involving not only the physical moral and mental life of the opium-eater himself, but embittering not infrequently the lives of those associated with him its pernicious hold upon its victims is apparent.

Within the past twenty years the habit of ascribing every ill that afflicts humanity to "malaria" has given to quinine a popularity beyond all precedent in the past. Thousands of men carry this drug in their vest-pockets, taking it without regard to medical advice and making by its indiscriminate use, assaults upon the organs of hearing, deranging the stomach and confusing the mind.

It is not surprising, in view of the cathartics employed to counteract the evils of an incorrect diet and sedentary mode of life, of the anæsthetics used to secure sleep which a steady and cruel strain upon the nerves has driven away of the stimulants and tonics swallowed to spur the tired forces of body and brain to renewed effort and of the tuns of patent nostrums taken for symptoms generally that Dr. Holmes should have been moved to declare that "the world would be better off if all the drugs were cast into the sea, though it might be fatal to the fishes."

Now and then we find a man in whom an exceptionally strong constitution and an abnormal stubbornness combine to enable him to scoff at physical weakness in others, and denounce all "doctor's stuff" as an unmitigated evil. But all reasonable persons are ready to admit that drugs properly and understandingly handled are important and valuable adjuncts to human life and health. It is their indiscriminate and ignorant use that renders them dangerous and objectionable. There is no doubt but intelligent care as to diet and the observance of simple sanitary rules, would reduce the grand army of the feeble and ailing whose daily rations consist of medicine rather than food to the minimum, and if the mania for self prescribing that has placed Ayer, and Jaynes and Townsend, and the legion of others, whose name have gone down to posterity on pill boxes and bottle labels, in the ranks of the world's millionaires, would turn in the direction of intelligent prevention of disease by simple natural means, it would find not only a wide but a useful field for legitimate endeavor.

The diocesan convention of the Episcopal church in South Carolina has after much labor and discussion, drawn the color line in that diocese. All colored clergymen in the convention are permitted to hold their seats but colored applicants in the future will be refused admission. There was but one colored minister in the convention, and on account of his admission several delegates withdrew and precipitated the holy war that ended in the compromise noted. This brought more of them back and the supposition is that this troublesome question is now permanently settled and that henceforth there will be in South Carolina an Episcopal church white and an Episcopal church black both militant, of course, since the white brethren are modest unassuming men, as becomes their humble vocation and do not presume to dictate even in the matter of color, to the church triumphant.

Hitherto there has been an unnatural congestion of the population of California at San Francisco, that is the proportion of the city has been unnaturally large for that of the state outside the city. But it now seems that the tendency to this disproportion is being checked by natural causes. In 1880 there were 56,737 school children in the city of San Francisco and 179,656 in the state outside the city. In 1888 the proportion was 59,757 for the city and 210,787 for the remainder of the state. The school census of the present year has progressed far enough to show that the number of children of school age in San Francisco will exceed 60,000 by little if any while a large increase is noted in the state outside the city. These figures seem to show that population in California, urban and rural, is adjusting itself to normal relations.

"Eight dollars a day and transportation" is the reward that each of the three commissioners appointed to treat with the Coeur d'Alene for a reduction of the area of their Idaho reservation is to receive. Three Oregon gentlemen, if Hon. Ben Simpson, now of Selma, Ala., may be thus located, are the lucky ones that get this summer trip with perquisities and emoluments. Whether the combined eloquence and plausibility of Messrs Shupe, Humphrey and Simpson will be successful in convincing "Poor Lo" that the coveted lands are "good for nothing to an Indian," remains to be seen. The excursion will be a pleasant and profitable one in any event—to the members of the commission.

Hon W T Burney, register of the land office at Oregon City informs THE OREGONIAN that he will furnish for publication as soon as received a copy of the instructions of the commissioner of the general land office relating to the rights of settlers to take up and under the act of March 4. He also says he would suggest that notice be served on the public to wait in patience the receipt of the same.

A story of clever swindling comes from Seattle. The banks of that city were robbed of $8000 through an old yet ever new device the chief elements of which were a young man with an open countenance, who inspired public confidence by investing a few hundred dollars in real estate, dressing well and paying a few bills promptly. The way thus paved, he easily accomplished the rest by raising the amount on small checks by the simple device of adding a couple of ciphers. The only surprising thing in the transaction is that he contented himself with so small a sum as $8000 when the preliminaries were all arranged and the ways paved for a much larger amount.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Whitfield has found fraudulent star route contracts in his department involving $150,000 with a large territory yet to be examined. And yet the simple minded among the democracy were led to believe that the rascals were turned out about four years ago.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

Fish the ex banker who was pardoned by President Cleveland after serving four of the ten years of his sentence for complicity in the frauds committed by Ward on the Grants and others affords a good example to men who lead fast lives of the benefit of a quiet frugal life with healthy exercise. Mr Fish went to his sentence a worn out Wall street man. He had lived on sumptuous food and had been burdened by business cares, yet the four years of frugal living restored his health and made him new again. Sing Sing life, labor and diet should be attractive to New York business men if it rejuvenates them to that extent.

Dr James Withycombe, state veterinarian has gone to Umatilla to inspect horses supposed to suffer from nasal gleet. The senior veterinary surgeon of this military department R. B. Corcoran, has been to Fort Spokane to examine into a fatal disease said to exist among the government horses there. He says it comes from eating hay that grows along the mountains and is rusted by the damp weather peculiar to that region. Rusty timothy is poisonous, and he thinks the disease is the same as he treated at Fort Colville many years ago. It appears as paralysis, lung disease or heart disease. It may be that the Umatilla disease is of the same nature.

Judge Milton Kelly is now an old man who is well identified with Idaho. He was a territorial United States judge during Grant's time. When he left the bench he purchased the Boise City Statesman before that time owned by Jim Reynolds who had a warm time of it as a republican journalist during the civil war. Kelly has been at the editorial helm many years and has done good work. He is succeeded as editor by John E French of Washington who ought to be a man of ability from his antecedents. At the present time Idaho is quite civilized and average republican in politics but republicans who fought the battle of the party had a warm time of it and sometimes were not altogether safe from harm.

The Weston Leader says Experiments with alfalfa on the steep hillsides of the mountains in Kern county, Cal, has demonstrated that this nutritious grass will grow and thrive in these high altitudes where the soil receives all the moisture from the clouds. We would like to see some of our farmers who have ranches up in the mountains try the experiment of raising alfalfa. W Lair Hill had a ranch a few miles from The Dalles and on a sharp ridge of good soil he tried to grow alfalfa for pasturage in summer. It did well, or fairly well, for several years but did not last. This trial was made eight or ten years ago on thirty acres of land not far from the Cascades. Alfalfa must send its roots to water or have moist soil. The experiment made by Mr Hill will probably apply to all the bunchgrass country.

Richard Lee, alias Bennett Jackson must have thought Nemesis was on his track the other day at Flensburg when Russell detective from Los Angeles armed with the proper papers arrested him for the murder of William Duncan, in Southern California eighteen years ago. All these years under one name and another, this murderer has been drifting about with his mind oppressed by the fear of arrest. Perhaps he had come to feel that time had smoothed over the track and all remembrance of him was lost. Justice never sleeps though she sometimes fails to see. There will be a warning to the whole school of ruffians in such an arrest that will terrify evil-doers. To see a man tried after so many years will deter others more than trial and conviction for murder newly done.

Dress reform is a matter that greatly interests women. Some of them in this city have attended the lectures of Mrs. Jenness Miller who had crowded houses. She showed a new style of garments for women. Some of the dresses exhibited were fine enough to suit a princess. No weight hangs from the hips—all from the shoulders—so health is consulted. A lady explains why the new style has not been adopted. One would not know the difference from merely passing, a person so dressed in the street it seems, but the makeup is so entirely different from the prevailing style that a lady who would attempt the reform method would need to reconstruct everything she wore and create an entirely new wardrobe. Here is where the difficulty comes in. If a lady wishes to adopt the new style she must discard the old wardrobe, and most of them do not feel able to expend so much and lose so much as would be necessary so the reform drags and does not become general.

The Farmington Register has a communication signed Andrew Saltise, "that shows how the world moves. At the time of the Steptoe campaign Saltise rode at the head of the Coeur d'Alene warriors and was a savage chief bent on destroying the whites. Time passed and the Coeur d'Alenes have grown into civilization and the old chief rides his pony around the country bent on keeping his people straight. He is well to-do, and thrifty in his ways. Sometimes he drives into Farmington behind a good pair of carriage horses in a comfortable family hack. The communication referred to relates to his people asks saloon men not to sell liquor to his half breeds and says if any of his people are found drunk in town he would like to have the city marshals arrest them and send word to him and he will go and get them and put them in his jail. He also talks to the county clerk about estrays and says his people lose many horses. He closes by saying "I want to be at peace with all the whites and would like to have the whites use my people as they use one another." Read the above and then imagine the change since the writer rode at the head of his warriors—but that was a third of a century ago and many strange things have happened since then.

When prohibition wants an alibi it don't hesitate about going to the saloon to find one. The Voice prohibition organ, voices the feelings of scores of rejected saloon keepers of Pittsburg, where the number of licensed liquor selling places has been reduced from over 3000 in 1887 to something over 500 in 1888 and now to 116 in 1889. Of course those who are rejected all feel sore, and by some folk's feeling not reasonable to an outsider fly to the prohibition organ to relieve their minds. All declare that the raising the license to $500 had nothing to do with it they could and would have paid $1000, but Judge White simply would not give them license, because he was a prohibitionist. Singularly enough they all use the same language as to being willing to pay $1000 and Judge White being a prohibitionist but the Voice hasn't a word from Judge White to corroborate their says. If he is a prohibitionist advocate it would seem that he would be anxious to help them by a statement. The third party advocates overdo their testimony and show how unscrupulous they are by going to the most unreliable people to gather testimony. As was often said in the last campaign in Oregon prohibition goes to the whisky element for assistance in all ways and it is more than probable that democratic money paid their expenses last year, thinking they would draw strength from republicans such a policy shows reckless disregard of principle that is very demoralizing.

POOR STUFF, LARGE SALES

Proof Positive That Consumption of Liquor Is Increasing in Iowa

DUBUQUE Ia May 20—Referring to his controversy with B F Wright, of Charles City father of the prohibitory amendment, Internal Revenue Collector Webster said to day:

Had I desired I could have given Mr Wright more unpalatable facts concerning the operation of the prohibitory law in Iowa. I might have stated that I issued 232 more liquor dealers licenses this year than last, and that the prohibitory law has increased the sale of spirits in Iowa. This is shown by the reports of sales made to my office by the wholesale liquor dealers in my district. The number of wholesale dealers is slightly smaller than before the prohibitory law went into effect but the sales are larger and the quality of liquor sold poorer. Not only have the sales of our dealers increased, but the decision of the United States supreme court in the case of Bowman Bros, known as the original package decision the importations by express in original packages have been enormous. We stopped this for a time by arresting the wholesaler's license, they had no license to do business at the point of delivery, which the packages being sent C O D was considered the point of sale but now customers send money with their orders and thus evade the government law. One cause is that where the saloons are closed the drinkers form clubs and drink more than they otherwise would while those who order the stuff for their own consumption only are tempted to drink by having the liquor beside them constantly.

Good Advice.

Every family should be provided with some reliable remedy for bowel complaints. Many deaths occur each year in cases of colic and cholera morbus because medicines for these diseases are not kept at hand for use when needed. Before a physician can be summoned or medicines procured it is everlastingly too late. Messrs I Blumauer & Co are agents for a preparation that is a complete success. It is called Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. It acts quick, can always be depended upon and is pleasant and safe to take.

WHERE DARWINISM FAILS.

A Plea for the Recognition of the Divine Reason.

S George Mivart in the Forum

The conditions of material existence, the primary energies and the ultimate properties of matter cannot be the offspring of the undesigned play of blind force. But if so, why is it held credible that intelligence has called into being through ordained internal forces, all the varied species of animals and plants? If we are compelled, as in fact we are, to suppose this latent intelligence in nature, how superfluous impertinent and absurd become those imaginary trains of hypothetical ancestors with hypothetical qualities so freely indulged in by puzzled Darwinians who do not see how without them to dispense with reason and design in nature.

On the other hand when having recognized the guidance of a divine reason we reconsider the play of nature's destructive forces we can perceive therein both the same agency which we saw in the primary conditions of the universe and in the mind of man. So considered we see that natural selection not only may be but must be orderly and providential as much as the properties of elementary substances or the budding forth of fresh variations in the form of organic life. Thus natural selection may well be a predicted subordinate agent not only in the evolution of animals and plants, but of families, tribes and nations of mankind.

Such an evolution of species as this may be called "creation" for all that creation need mean in such connection is implied therein. It is an evolution full of purpose and replete with design which exists not only at its root and origin but also accompanies it at every step of its progress.

Darwinism therefore, wonderfully useful as it has been in stimulating biological research, is not philosophically considered, a progress, but is rather a retrogression. Deeply considered it is far more widely divergent from the truth than were the old fashioned views of creation of 100 years ago.

The teachings which science seems to us clearly to indicate is that the world has been developed by a process of evolution directly contrary to that which is dreamed of by Darwinians. It is a system in which every activity of every inorganic and organic body from the dust of a volcano to the imagination of a Michael Angelo, a Dante or a Shakespeare, is a divinely ordered process, carried into effect through the reaction of the inner nature of each being on the stimulus of its environment the further action of which controls and limits it. It is a process, the consistent successions and laws of which it is the noble task of physical science to investigate in a fruitful and practically limitless progress by studying the phenomena which are on every side spread out before our gaze and for the suitable appreciation as well as the right use of which we are each decree variously responsible.

WATER-WAYS AND COMMERCE.

The Benefit That Accrues to Shipping and Trade Through Big Canals.

Mining Journal

One of the important appropriations last session of congress was the sum of $200,000 for the survey of a route for a ship canal between Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river. By ship canal it is not contemplated to build such a canal as that of Suez or the one under construction to Manchester in England, as the minimum depth to be provided is stated in the act to be only seven feet, yet this would give tolerable free intercommunication by water between the great lakes and rivers the dimensions of the locks to be provided being designated as 170 feet in length and 30 feet in width.

What this would mean in advantage to Chicago and other points is hard to estimate. Yet if we are to judge from the results achieved through the canalization of the Main up to Frankfort in Germany, the expenditure is likely to be very beneficial from a commercial point of view apart from the object to be attained by the government and which it is stated in the act of being able to pass gunboats in time of war, for purposes of defense from the lakes to the rivers and vice versa. At Frankfort, which in one respect is quite a case in point, the depth of water being less than seven feet the new navigation has been opened only about two years and already is restoring to that city its old commercial character, it having recently owing to the obstruction to navigation in the Main become little more than a banking or financial center.

The traffic of 1887 shows a forty nine fold increase over that of 1881. While there is this enormous increase in water borne trade the railroads have been benefited also by the general activity and show an increase of 36 per cent in their receipts in 1887 over the previous year. To adduce another case in point nearer home the work of improving the St Lawrence between Quebec and Montreal for ocean going vessels to a channel of twenty-seven and one half feet in depth has at last been completed, and as the channel has improved so has the amount of shipping and trade the tonnage last year being 870,773 tons against 411,476 in 1873.

Inflammation of the Kidneys.

R C Harris Baxter Chase Co. Kansas, writes: I have been afflicted with chronic inflammation of the kidneys. I suffered so much pain that I could not lie on my back in bed against it. My water also contained a chalky sediment. I tried many remedies but could get no relief. I then took two ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS and put one over each kidney, making them meet on my back bone. These plasters strange as it may seem cured me in a week. All soreness was gone and my urine was natural.

PLEASANT + LITTLE + HOMES

[illegible]

The public are hereby cautioned against the malicious advertising of a certain unscrupulous real estate firm who, unable to do business themselves have adopted the role of dog in the manger to endeavor to interfere with the legitimate business of other firms. They advertise acre property adjoining Pleasant Little Homes, and by dividing what has never been divided try to make it appear that lots can be bought at $10 apiece. This they do knowing full well that property is always sold cheaper in proportion by the acre than in lots and for good reasons. The owner or syndicate selling property on the market in lots must stand the expenses of surveying, staking, dedicating, fees, certificates, advertising, brokers commissions, loss of interest on deferred payments, hazard of installments not being paid at all and a thousand and one other risks and expenses. In addition he must take the risk of only selling a portion of his lots and having the others left on his hands for an indefinite period and thus lose his interest. These facts are well known both to land owners and land agents but the firm above mentioned trusting to the ignorance of the general public in land matters are attempting to mislead, and have thereby earned the execration of all honest dealers at whose request largely we publish this explanation. If necessary we can publish the original cost of property handled by the above named firm, together with the prices at which they have sold the same when platted and convict them by their own actions.

Contractors Unable to Get Enough Brick to Supply the Demand.

A Sunday at the Park—Street Cars Come Near Colliding—Another Seal for the City Park—Going to the Paris Exposition.

HARD TO GET BRICK.—Messrs. Ellison & Litherland, who have the contract for building the new academy for the Sisters of the Holy Names, are having trouble about getting brick. They had a difficulty of some kind with the brick trust last fall and there is a disputed balance of several hundred dollars between them and the trust which has not been paid. For this reason the trust would sell them no brick till the matter was settled. A person, however, did buy some 80,000 or more brick, ostensibly for building a dry house, and paid for them, and it seems that the brick so ordered were delivered to Ellison & Litherland. All this would have gone on very well, but unfortunately the brick became scarce at the yard whence they were obtaining them, and there is but little likelihood that there will be any supplies there for some time. This causes delay in the construction of the academy, but the trust say they have nothing to do with this, as they did not sell any brick to Messrs. Ellison & Litherland, who have made arrangements to procure a supply from a yard to be started out near the Red house. Mr. F. A. Bangasser has also started a brick yard some distance beyond the Red house, where he will burn the brick for the theater and other buildings he proposes to erect on his block opposite the big hotel.

SUNDAY AT THE PARK.—The city park was yesterday again crowded by people, who sought its shady nooks and rural quietude to escape the dust and heat of the busy city. Although old Sol vents his caloric force the same in the park as in the city, the gentlest breeze there is felt like the invigorating breath of springtime. By reason of its elevation the park recieves the benefit of every commotion in the aerial elements, be it ever so slight. Not less than 2000 people visited the grounds during yesterday. Men, women and children, dressed in summer attire, occupied every seat, while a still larger number had to content themselves with the soft side of the green sward.

ALMOST A COLLISION.—As one of the street cars on the Washington street line approached the western terminus yesterday afternoon a horse and buggy, immediately in front of it, had a narrow escape from being run into. The man who was driving in the buggy had his wife and a little child with him, but as he was slightly under the influence of liquor he had not the best control over the horse. The street-car driver evidently did not take the helpless condition of the man into consideration, for he drove ahead regardless of the obstruction facing him. A gentleman standing on the rear platform of the car turned the brake just in time to avert a collision.

THEY OPENLY FLAUNTED.—Most saloons are furnished with swing doors or screens, which shut off the view of the inside from the street. There is a low dive on Third street, between Morrison and Yamhill, lately opened, which is not provided with any thing of the sort and which stood wide open yesterday, giving all persons an opportunity to see the noble gentleman who keeps the place and his still more noble patrons, a dozen or so Chinamen playing billiards. It seems as if such property as that at the northeast corner of Third and Yamhill might find more respectable tenants and be put to better uses than bagnios and disreputable dives, even if the owner did not get quite so much rent.

ONE MORE SEAL.—City Parkkeeper Myers has received another seal, which makes two that are now in the park. The new visitor, which is somewhat smaller than "Babe," the pet of the park, has been given quarters in a small pond in the lower end of the deer pen. It is a fine-looking, healthy specimen of a seal, but it does not take its food with as much eagerness as all sensible seal should, and some apprehensions are felt for its life. All the seals lately brought to the park have lacked the one essential quality of longevity. All, with the exception of this last one, and "Babe," are numbered among the dead.

GOOD WATER BADLY NEEDED.—Several picnic parties visited the City Park Saturday afternoon, among them a number of school children, who, with their teachers, greatly enjoyed themselves among the shady pines. The only drawback to their pleasure was a lack of good drinking water. The well in the park furnishes but a poor supply, and when the pumps kept going the water soon becomes unfit for drinking. Some means should be taken to furnish the park with a good supply of water both for drinking purposes and for watering the flowers and grass.

HIS WORK APPRECIATED.—Mr. J. P. Looney, principal of the Fulton schools, has been commissioned, in connection with Mr. John Kelly, by Governor Pennoyer, as representative from the state of Oregon to the Paris exposition. Mr. Looney has just ended a very successful year as teacher in the Fulton schools, and is retained for the coming year, showing that his work is much appreciated. He will leave for Paris on June 8. He expects to be absent until about September 1.

THE ASTORIA BOAT.—The traveling public will be pleased to learn that the steamer Lurline, after a complete overhauling, has been again placed on the Astoria route. This trim little craft is now the "crack" boat of the river and she will make the round trip to Astoria daily, except Sunday, leaving the foot of Taylor street at 8 P. M. Returning the Lurline will leave Astoria daily at 7 A. M., excepting Sunday, on which day she will start back at 7 P. M.

WANTED TO STEAL THEM.—At the close of the services in the Chinese Baptist mission church on Yamhill street last night one of the lady teachers was obliged to call in the aid of police officers to escort several Chinese women to their homes in East Portland. A group of Chinamen engaged in animated conversation were standing across the street, and it was said that it was their intention to abduct three of the women.

ILLNESS OF CAPTAIN BRANNAN.—Captain A. B. Brannan, who has been connected with the police force for a quarter of a century, is at Good Samaritan hospital suffering from an attack of malarial fever, from which, however, he is rapidly recovering, and hopes to be able to resume his duties in a week or so. His many friends will regret to learn of his illness, and be gratified to hear of his speedy convalescense.

SUITABLE ARRANGEMENTS FOR A WORTHY DAY.—Arrangements are being perfected for the excursion and memorial celebration of Multnomah Falls next Thursday. Several speakers have been engaged for short addresses. Music is being prepared. The steamer S. G. Reed has been secured, and no effort will be spared to make the occasion one as appropriate as at any other point in the state.

COMMENCED WORK.—Messrs. Hoffman & Bates have at last got to work on their contract for bridges and trestles on the O. R. & N. Co.'s road across the Coeur d'Alene reservation. The roads heretofore have been so bad that it was impossible to haul timber from the mills; but the rains have ceased and the roads become passable and the work will now go ahead full blast.

RESIGNED.—Dr. James Browne having been appointed one of the board of examiners to regulate the practice of medicine in the state of Oregon, has resigned the chair of physiology and hygiene in the medical department of the Willamette university, which he has filled for nine consecutive years.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Deady will announce a decision in this court this morning in the case of Christian vs. Scott, receiver, on the motion for a new trial; also in the case of Pennoyer and others vs. Swift and others on exceptions, for impertinence to the answer.

ALL FOR $1, AT E. MEYER & CO.'S—33⅓ yards of lawn for $1. We will sell for to-day (Monday) 500 pieces lawns for 3c per yard. Just from the East, at E. Meyer Co.'s. Also, don't forget our great parasol sale, reduced in prices. Call early at E. Meyer & Co.'s.

WANTED.—A first-class clothing salesman. None other need apply. Must have good references. Arthur Kohn.

THE TROUBLES SEEM TO DEEPEN.

Affairs of the Oregonian Railway Company Still "Disjointed."

The troubles of the Oregonian Railway Company appear to be increasing instead of coming to an end, as it was supposed they would when a liquidator was appointed. Mr. Alexander Mackay, the attorney for this liquidator, is supposed to be still in New York, endeavoring to sell the lines of the company. Mr. Stoddart, who represents some of the bondholders, is still here, trying to bring matters to a focus.

The transfer boat, City of Salem, is tied up at Fulquartz, and the Portland & Willamette Valley does not receive freight for the East Side branch of the narrow gauge. It is rumored that the employes of the Oregonian Railway Company will quit work to-day. It looks to man up a tree as if a sort of concerted effort was being made to wreck the concern, if anything so shaken up and disjointed can be wrecked.

The liquidator has done something, as will be seen from the following, taken from the Dundee (Scotland) Advertiser of May 6.

"Formal intimation has been made to the shareholders of the Oregonian Railway Company of the lists of contributories to the company now in liquidation. It is proposed in the application to the court of session by Mr. Myles, the liquidator, to make a call at the rate of £2 2s 6d per share on each of the ordinary shares, payable by two equal installments—the first on the 15th of June, 1889, and the second on the 2d of August, 1889. It appears that there are arrears of calls unpaid amounting to £7622 14s 2d, of which £5296 17s 6d is due by two shareholders in Oregon."

One of these shareholders is Mr. J. B. Montgomery, and the other is doubtless Mr. William Reid.

RECEIVER SCOTT'S STATEMENT.

Mr. C. N. Scott, receiver of the Oregonian Railway, states that there will be no stoppage of trains and that the lines will continue to be operated as long as they are in his charge. He has appointed [illegible] W. Goddard superintendent in addition to [illegible] auditor of freight and ticket accounts, with headquarters at present at Dundee Junction, vice John McGuire, superintendent, and F. D. McCain, train dispatcher, resigned, the appointment to take effect to-day.

Receiver Scott has also issued a circular to shippers for all points on the East Side division of the Oregonian Railway, as follows:

"The transfer steamer between Ray's and Fulquartz landings having been seized for libel, the connection is broken between the Portland & Willamette Valley and the East Side line.

Until more definite arrangements can be made please forward all freight destined to points on the East Side division via O. & C. R. R. (East Side) and Woodburn, prepaid to Woodburn only."

REGIMENTAL GUARD GOSSIP.

Battalion Drill Tuesday Night—News Notes and Personals.

At 8 o'clock Tuesday evening about 500 spectators assembled in the First regiment Armory to witness what proved to be one of the finest battalion drills ever given in Portland. The formation was twelve file front, double rank, with Company G on the right of the line, Company E on the left, and Company C bearing the colors. The fourth company was a detail from Companies I, C and E, under Lieutenant McKay.

The various movements were well executed, and Colonel Beebe complimented the men very highly on the creditable manner in which they carried themselves. The command, "Break ranks, march," was given at 10:30, and all went away well satisfied with the military maneuvers of the boys in blue.

All the old members of the First Regiment band have received their discharge and new a band is being organized. Ten of the old members will re-enlist with the new band leader and ten more additional applications have been received from outsiders.

Company I's drill last Monday night was adjourned out of respect to Moses Danziger, a member of the company, who was drowned in the Willamette the day before.

J. C. Rutenick, W. S. McKean, F. D. Kelsay, E. O. Shader, B. C. Curry, E. Milloy and H. Weber have made applications for enlistment with Company A.

Private Beavis, Company E, has been appointed second sergeant, vice Porter, promoted.

Company E are making arrangements for their picnic to be given some time during June.

FIRST LARGE SCHOONERS.

Regarding the Origin of Three and Four-Masters.

Interesting Discussion Going on Among the Shipping Papers—The Snagboat Willamette and What She Is Doing.

The discussion going on among the shipping papers regarding the origin of three and four-masted schooners—which was the first of each type—is a pretty long look back, for these rigs are by no means such a recent innovation as is generally supposed, although they have been more extensively employed in the last half dozen years than in all the time previously, says the Industrial Journal of Bath, Me. The first four master that ever came to Bangor was the Weybosset. She was built in 1864 at Mystic, Conn., as a steamer, and afterwards changed to a four-masted schooner. She came to Bangor several trips in 1881, and loaded ice, attracting much attention. She is long, straight and narrow, and registers 698 tons. It is said that the William L. White, of Boston (not the W. L. White, of Rockland), was the first vessel regularly built as a four-masted schooner, but she is out of the register now, probably lost, and the date of her building cannot easily be ascertained. A considerable number of three-masted schooners were built in New Jersey and New York just before and during the war, one of the earliest being the Benefactor, 544 tons, launched at New York in 1857. The three-masted General Banks was built at Bangor in 1863 or 1864, and the Magnolia at Surry about the same time. This latter vessel had a short mizzen-mast, like a bark. It is alleged, however, that there was a three-masted schooner built at Machias some years before this.

In the period immediately succeeding the war about all the schooners built at Bangor were two-masters, but soon afterwards the three-master came to the fore and quite a fleet of this type was built. In 1871 the Addie G. Bryant and Carrie E. Woodbury were launched, in 1874 the Lizzie Cobb and in 1875 the Maud Briggs, with others during the same period. The vessels were all between 125 and 250 tons, small craft compared with the three-masters of to-day, but they were conspicuous at that time, because the three-masted rig was rare in the port of Bangor. In the old days there used to be some slashing big two-masters, a few of which have been rigged over into three-stickers, but the most of which are "dead." Two in particular, the Mary A. Rich and Lathley Rich, built at Winterport before the war, were over 400 tons each. They were flat-bottomed, and the first mentioned rolled and slattered so on a voyage out to New Orleans that she stretched her wire rigging slack. It probably gave in the splices and at the turns, but it was regarded as a remarkable thing for wire rigging to stretch anywhere.

The impression seems to have obtained in some quarters that because one or two of the big fellows have had bad luck, the whole idea of building large schooners has received a black eye. This is about as foolish as to suppose that no sidewheel steamboats should be built because a few of them were lost a few years since. These big schooners are very long, to be sure, and are not as stiff as ships, but they are first-rate things to carry coal in, and with decent luck can pay for themselves in a few seasons. Coal freights are pretty good now, ice freights will be, and they are building a lot more of big schooners, just as people will continue to do as long as there is anything to carry alongshore.

The United States engineers' snagboat Willamette arrived from St. Helens at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, where she has been engaged in getting out rock to be used in protecting the dam at Burns slough, which is just below St. Helens. The water, which for the past few weeks has been rather high, has cut the dam badly in several places. The Willamette goes down again this morning to resume the work.

After the water subsides sufficiently, Captain M. Martineau, who has charge of the snagboat, will, in all probability, take her to the Upper Willamette and commence pulling snags and doing a little work on Rock island. There are a great many snags in the river channel which will have to be removed. Some of them have been in the river for five or six years, but owing to the swift water have been hard to get at. This will be Captain Martineau's first work on the upper Willamette, he having formerly been engaged on the government works at the Cascade locks. He is, however, in every way competent to carry out the plans of the engineers.

The treasury department has assigned official numbers to the following Pacific coast vessels: Schooner James Hamilton Lewis, No. 76 805; steamer James G. Swan, No. 76,803; steamer Lucy Lowe, No. 140,856, all of Port Townsend. The schooner Nettie Sundborg, of this port, received No. 130,443, the steamer Aliso of Eureka, No. 106,632, while Astoria was represented by the steamer Alma, No. 136,018; steamer Louis Olsen, No. 140,995, and steamer Wishkah Chief, No. 81,215.

FOR FARMER AND STOCKMAN

A Comparison of Profits in the Breeding of Horses.

The Pure Bred Hog—The Ayrshire Breed of Cattle—English and American Grasses—Agricultural Notes.

We have lately had a great deal to say on the subject of the profit there is in good draft horses, as opposed to the lack of it in the scrubs such as are grown by the majority of Missouri farmers Our contemporary, the Farmers' Review has been making a full investigation of this general subject and reaches some conclusions which we consider of great value on this point and will quote from extensively

The Review sent out inquiries into all the counties of the principal Western and Northwestern states in regard to the development of the draft horse breeding industry and the relative cost and value of scrubs and grade horses From the reports received they were able to make up a very voluminous and no doubt truthful report For our purpose however we shall be content with comparing the condition of things in this branch of farming in the state of Missouri with the same in Iowa In many respects these two states are similar They are adjoining states in a large portion of them the soil and agricultural products are much the same and if the soil is on average better in Iowa the difference is probably offset by the more favorable climate of Missouri In Iowa the farmers seem to be far more progressive in a general way than in Missouri They have gone into dairying and breeding improved stock to a far greater extent than in Missouri

In summing up its conclusions as to the different states the Review has the following on Iowa

The summary of our reports from this state place the selling price of the good horse at $185 as a general average when compared with an average of $90 for the common horse This comparison of figures should surely prove the best possible evidence that the enthusiasm in Iowa over the horse breeding business is based upon a solid foundation—the knowledge that there is an average of 75 per cent. to be made by breeding grades instead of scrubs or at least 60 per cent. after deducting the comparatively high service fee of a pure-bred horse Attention is being paid not only to draft horses The breeders are commencing to inquire for good coach sires For instance our Allamakee reporter says What this country needs most at present is good coach stallions." Farmers are fast learning the advantage of breeding grades The county above mentioned report "Probably one-third of the farmers still use scrubs, but are getting educated in the right direction " In Audubon county, which was for the greater part first opened for settlement about ten years ago the native stock was of very inferior quality The first and second crosses are consequently smaller than an outsider might expect Yet our reporter says The quality of stock is improving greatly every year and grade colts from pure bred draft horses are hard to buy while common work horses are hunting buyers " He gives the grade an advantage of $50 in price over the scrub and 300 pounds in weight From Humboldt county comes the following ' There are some farmers here who still breed to grade stallions, but they are a class of people slow to appreciate advancement, and are always distanced by their more enterprising neighbors They are a class of people always quoting 'my father's ways' whether in farming stock raising or school matters ' The old rule of thumb ' ideas about horse raising must in these days be buried along with the dead past That's where the cross-roads scrub sire should be consigned Harrison county energetically reports ' There are as yet three fourths of the farmers breeding to grade or scrub sires but we are on the boom for better blood in our county and intend to wipe out the dunghill stallion as soon as possible ' Story county shipped over $60 000 worth of horses in 1888 not including breeding stallions and only 5 per cent. of the mares in the county are bred to scrubs or grades A fine report certainly! In Tama county, so says our reporter 'two imported stallions do more work than all the scrubs in the county The report from Iowa shows very active work upon the part of importers and great intelligence and enterprise upon the part of the farmers

In regard to Missouri it says this

This state except in the raising of mules trotters saddle and race horses is away behind When it comes to breeding horses for farm work the scrub seems to be the most popular and next to him in estimation is the grade In some quarters however the pure-bred draft stallion is getting a footing and doubtless will in time gain the ascendancy The report from Cole county is particularly bad Andrew county is not much better but our reporter says that improvement is noticeable Butler is truly antiquated only one pure-bred stallion and common horses selling at $30 to $45 per head Their weight is given as from 700 to 800 pounds Christian county is even more heathen than this Our reporter there says "There is nothing better than half blood stallions in this county 5 per cent mares are bred to scrubs In Pike county the scrubs are being crowded out Our reporter four years ago this spring took the first imported draft stallions into the county He says I find a better demand for the service of pure stallions since the colts have begun to show up The farmers and breeders can see the advantage of breeding to pure bred stallions I think in a few years Pike county will hold her own with any county in the state as everyone seems to take a deep interest in improving their stock ' Our Texas county correspondent says I am very sorry that there are no draft stallions in use in this county but such is the case at present Farmers are taking some more interest in good horses now than a few years ago They see the difference in price of a good horse and a poor horse

If the concluding sentence above is true we hope to see some progress made in this line soon but why the farmers should so stand in their own light and be so slow to adopt what they cannot fail to see is to their own interest we do not understand We trust that the figures given below showing comparative cost and profit between scrubs and good grades will have some good effect

As will be seen there is a wide difference between the selling price of the common horse and the grade in all the states And in Missouri and other states where are fewest well bred draft horses and as a result the poorest quality of grades this difference is least

AVERAGE OF SELLING PRICE

State	Common Horse	Grade Horse.
Illinois	$ [illegible]0 00	$1[illegible]0 00
Iowa	90 00	[illegible]5 00
Indiana	100 00	160 00

Nebraska	90 00	1[illegible] 00
Dakota	10[illegible] 00	160 00
General average for twelve states	96 67	163 00

And taking the average service fee and cost of maintenance of colt the following shows the average of cost and profit

	Service fee	T[illegible]	Selling price	Net return

Grade Horse	20 00	[illegible] 00	1[illegible] 00	[illegible] 00

Profit of grade over common horse $[illegible]

It is useless to ask the question is the difference of $[illegible]33 in profit worth making to the farmer Of course it is Then why do not Missouri farmers go more into the business of raising good heavy grade draft horses? The question is too hard for us to answer—Journal of Agriculture

SAGE OR GREEN CHEESE

The ordinary green or sage cheese common in parts of England and New England is made as follows For one of eight to twelve pounds two large handfuls of green sage and one-fourth as much each of green parsley and marigold leaves are bruised and infused for twelve hours in four quarts of milk This colored milk is mixed with one third part of the whole quantity intended to be curded and each is curded in the usual way separately The curd is scalded drained broken up and salted ready for pressing The colored curd is then mixed with the other in various ways as may suit the fancy, either evenly blended so as to get a smooth green cheese, or in fancy designs such as squares, diamonds, marbled or streaked or in irregular patches. The curd is pressed in tin molds of various designs or in flat cakes or cylindrical forms. When the molds are filled they are pressed and cured as ordinary cheese is and sufficient time is given in a rather moist, airy room or cellar for the curing A soft green cheese for immediate use and very popular where it is made is put up as follows Young leaves of sage and spinach are pounded in a mortar and the juice is pressed from them A sufficient quantity of this juice to give the desired color and flavor is mixed with milk when it is all ready for the rennet The milk is then curded the curd is gently cut to save the color and the whey is drained off The curd is put into a mold and lightly pressed for seven or eight hours It is lightly sprinkled with salt twice a day for four days and then turned daily for a month or so as the weather and temperature may require for curing It is then fit for use It should be made of rich fresh milk and if the strippings are kept from several cows at the same milking the cheese will be most delicious and of a peculiarly delicate and pleasant flavor Ten quarts of good milk will make a cheese of nearly three pounds weight Some of these green cheeses are flavored in various ways as by sprinkling finely powdered caraway seeds and mace on the layers of curd in the mold or by any other spices or flavoring, and are sometimes enriched by adding cream or even fresh churned butter to the curd when the milk is not rich enough —American Agriculturist for May

THE PURE BRED HOG

The National Stockman says If a farmer is skeptical about the superiority of a pure bred hog over the common sort for breeding purposes he has only to make one trial of a pure-bred male on common sows, and compare the progeny with the common sort We mean they are superior in appearance and quality and fatten more readily—not superior in power or strength of resisting mean treatment Some men have the idea that a well bred pig should subsist on a less amount of feed than a scrub and feed accordingly The great improvement of the former over the latter consists in being able to consume more, and in making better returns for the food consumed That man that buys a finely bred pig and expects to fatten him in a shorter time with less food daily than he would a common one misses his calculations, but with a liberal supply of food—all the animal will consume—much time will be saved and more meat made for the amount of food.

A man claims that his hogs would be as good as his neighbors' thoroughbreds if they were as well cared for Admit that feed and care are more than one-half the points on the score yet they cannot elevate the common to the quality of the thoroughbred in one year or five A trial in this direction will be a most convincing proof

A pure bred animal will degenerate to nothing at a fast pace on careless treatment A common pig does not have far to go to reach nothingness, and he will stand a great amount of mean treatment on the way But this is no argument in favor of propagating the species That kind of toughness in a hog is of no commercial value —National Stockman.

THE AYRSHIRE BREED OF CATTLE

The Ayrshire is eminently a dairy breed The cows are active, hardy and will flourish and give good yields of milk under conditions that would starve pampered cattle They have great power of endurance healthy appetites good digestion and ready adaptiveness to all vicissitudes of situation and climate They are remarkably free from tendency to disease, tuberculosis and other affections of the respiratory organs being unknown among them They are long lived, often improving in milking qualities up to ten years of age

The general form of the Ayrshire cow has been described as resembling a hand saw, with the small end forward The head is fine and lean face rather long and slightly dishing horns slim and waxy, neck fine and slim udder large and well spread out rather than pendent teats small often too small for convenient milking The characteristic colors are red and white, though brown is not unusual The reds are of various shades from light brick color to deep cherry, and the white is in spots of various forms and sizes but never mingled into a roan The average standard weight is about 1000 pounds —American Agriculturist for May

THE AMERICAN WORK HORSE

The Breeders' Gazette says The Mark Lane Express in a recent discussion of the Shire horse trade emphasized the importance of British breeders giving attention to the production of the sort of horses best suited to their foreign trade and instanced that the type which is likely to serve the American demand best is the thick blocky short-legged level active horse with plenty of bone and feathers Our italics will indicate the point at which we take departure from this otherwise accurate description of the type best esteemed in America and a hint at the reason why may be found in the communication in another column from Mr F B Scott an Ohio correspondent Our contemporary announces on the authority of 'one of the leading exporters of draft horses " that the ideal American Shire horse should stand about sixteen hands high and weigh about 1600 pounds ' The Gazette imagines that in a concensus of opinion of American importers on the point of weight the average would add about 200 pounds to that stated by our contemporary We do plead guilty to liking them low to the ground

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN GRASSES.

The Breeders Gazette has the following very pertinent questions on a most important subject for nothing can be more valuable than excellent grasses

Can any of the Gazette readers say a good word for the foreign grasses? Year after year we see English rye tall oat meadow fescue and other foreign grasses lauded in seed catalogues and read of the large returns certain upon sowing them Books on grasses recommend some of them highly and it must be that many have attempted to grow these foreign claimants for positions in our meadows Is it true that our list of grasses stops short with timothy and Kentucky bluegrass with a sprinkling of orchard grass? These are hardly known in England where instead, many varieties are used for seeding down meadows and pastures What say those who have had experience with English meadow and pasture grasses? Are our experiment stations testing them and what do they recommend? "

WARBLES IN CATTLE

As the spring advances small lumps or tumors will be found on the backs of the cattle, and in such a large white grub will be found These grubs are often called wolves and other local names but they are really the larva of a large bot or gad fly which lays eggs in the skin which it punctures or stings with its ovipositor These flies torment the cattle in July or August besides the hides are seriously damaged A day may be well spent in destroying the grubs which are now nearly ready to emerge from the holes in the skin through which they breathe By carefully squeezing the tumor they may be forced out and killed or a few drops of oil squeezed in from a squirt can will kill them If this could be generally done the pests would soon be got rid of —American Agriculturist for May

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

The following is from some young girl in Oregon to the Journal of Agriculture St Louis I am raising some young chickens for Portland market As soon as they are as large as quails they want them and if early in the spring we get from $4 to $5 a dozen for them I want to sell more next month (April) We have had no winter weather this season and but little rain this year has been the nicest weather for young chickens that I ever seen

The peach trees blossomed out about the 1st of March We have lots of flowers in bloom now out of doors The ground is carpeted in green and the trees and bushes are yet we can see snow every day We live in the valley and in sight of Mount Hood Mount Helen and three others We are in sight of Cascade range When we lived East I used to read of the grandeur of the Pacific coast but it is quite another thing to see it."

As to the profit of horses the Homestead gives the following facts ' The shipments of horses from Iowa and Illinois points have been the farmer's financial salvation for two or three years The counties that began raising draft horses ten years ago have Eastern buyers in their principal towns nearly all the time picking up carloads Every car load leaves from $2000 to $3000 in the county The shipments from many of the counties in one season amounts to from $100 000 to $200 000 Farmers in the newer counties and in Kansas and Nebraska and other adjoining states cannot catch on' too quickly The best class of half bred draft sell at about 10 cents a pound There is a good profit in the business From $250 to $300 for a span of colts broken to lead comes very handy when cattle are low

Farmers who cultivate a beard will be interested in reading the effect of a close shave Do you know what a close shave means? says a writer in an exchange I never did until I looked at a face the other day through a microscope which had been treated to this luxurious process Why the entire skin resembled a piece of raw beef To make the face perfectly smooth requires not only the removal of the hair but also a portion of the cuticle and a close shave means the removal of a layer of skin all around The blood vessels thus exposed are not visible to the eye but under the microscope each little quivering mouth holding a minute blood drop protects against such treatment The nerve tips are also uncovered and the pores are left unprotected which makes the skin tender and unhealthy This sudden exposure of the inner layer of the skin renders a person liable to have colds hoarseness and sore throat

TEN ACRES OF PASTURE

Extract from 'Bulletin No 4 West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station

After estimating a return of $2280 from ten acres of wheat and $2130 as gross receipts from ten acres of corn for ten consecutive years Mr Magruder asks What can be done on the same ten acres should they be converted into pasture? This amount of land will keep four good dairy cows and by a good cow we do not have reference to one that gives from two to eight pints of milk per day but one that will fall very little below the standard, which is as follows

First three months after becoming fresh 8½ gals per day	315 gals
Next four months 2 gals per day	240 gal
Next three months, 1½ gals per day	135 gals
Next two months	000 gals

In twelve months or one year she will have produced 690 gallons of milk which will make 230 pounds of butter granting that we obtain one pound of butter from every three gallons of milk The 230 pounds of butter sold at 25 cents per pound, the average price for the creamery product, gives as receipts for butter alone per cow per year $57 50 and upon this basis four cows would produce in ten years 9200 pounds of butter which sold at 25 cents per pound, would amount to $2300

Butter is not the only marketable product in milk, for out of every 25¼ lbs of whole sweet milk, from which we obtain 1 lb of butter, there remains 21¼ lbs of sweet skim milk when the centrifugal cream separator is used to extract the cream from the milk, the separation being best made while the milk is warm with animal heat This skim milk being perfectly sweet may be made into what is known as Schweitzer cheese, but as cheese can be manufactured only from the first of May to the last of October we must reckon six months in each year or five years in ten, to be devoted to the manufacture of cheese from skim milk Thus only one-half or 977 500 lbs of the skim milk which would have accumulated in the ten years, can go to the manufacture of cheese From this amount of milk can be made 8886 36 lbs of cheese assuming eleven pounds of milk to one of cheese which sold at four cents per pound would amount to $355 45 From the remaining half of the skim milk can be obtained equally as good results as experiments have shown that sweet skim milk converted into pork is as remunerative as when made into cheese In fact considering the extra expense of a cheesemaker in connection with the business (for certainly one man cannot make both butter and cheese for a creamery from 150 to 400 cows) it is more economical to feed the entire lot of skim milk to hogs than manufacture it into cheese, and then the man who runs the creamery, with little extra labor, can attend to a drove of 100 or 150 hogs

Let us assume the result obtained by converting the one half of the skim milk into pork just equal in value to that converted into cheese, though considering the expense of each results will be much in favor of feeding We then have twice the amount of the receipts for cheese or $710 00 as total receipts for skim milk during the decade From the cream which produced the 9200 pounds of butter we obtain 3737 5 gallons of buttermilk which valued at only 2 cent per gallon as hog feed (at least 5 cents being obtained when put on the market) we have $74 75 as proceeds from buttermilk in ten years

From the four cows in ten years may be raised thirty calves which sold to the butcher when six weeks old will have a value of $5 each giving for the entire lot a value of $150 From this $150 we must deduct the price of the milk used in rearing these calves Assuming that each will consume two gallons of skim milk per day equal in estimated value to 4 cents we have for thirty calves forty two days 2520 gallons of milk at 2 cents per gallon $50 40 deducted from $150 leaves $99 60 as value of calves

The four cows will have produced in ten years

9 200 lbs. of butter at 25 cents per lb	$2,300 00
8 896 39 lbs of cheese at 4 cents per lb	3[illegible]5 4[illegible]
12 218.75 gals of skim milk	3[illegible]5 4[illegible]
3737 75 gal buttermilk at 2 cents per gal	74 75
Calf flesh	99 60
	$3185 25

Giving as the gross receipts of the four cows on ten acres for ten years $3,185 25 which is $923 25 greater than gross receipts for wheat and $1 053 25 greater than gross receipts for corn for the same time This increase in the marketable produce is very apparent and the increase of nutrative matter in the soil is also apparent for at the end of a decade the cropped soil will hardly produce ten bushels of wheat to the acre while that pastured if the manure has been judiciously applied has accumulated fertilizers to produce four times as much from the land

The manure produced in ten years is not small in value it is the farmer's savings bank and makes his farm rich and productive if well applied The fertilizer from a dairy herd is not often properly valued animal excrement is as if live stock were used to convert hay and straw into manure Those in the creamery industry can save their manure apply it on their farms to enhance values while the principal harvest is from the milk sold

Not an Even Start in the Race

Buffalo Express.

A commercial traveler who has just returned from a small town in Michigan relates a funny incident that occurred in a little hotel in that burg The hotel was crowded and a weary traveler who came in and inquired for a room was told by the clerk that every room in the house, where it was possible had two beds in it already, except one and that one was occupied by an old farmer who snored loud enough to kill a horse

Is that all?" exclaimed the traveler jubilantly Why, man I want you to know that I am the champion snorer of my town and anybody who can beat me at it must be a cuckoo Just put a bed in that room for me

The clerk told him that it would be useless but the traveler insisted I'll just bet you $5 my snoring drives him out of the room

The clerk was looking for cinches and snapped the bet up quick Time wore on until the hour of retiring Singularly both men wended their way upstairs together The clerk waited further developments About an hour afterward a rustling was heard up above and the traveler half dressed with his coat vest and shirt on his arm came huffling down the steps Suddenly he walked over to the desk and planked down a V I told you so said the clerk who fairly rolled over with laughter What's ailing you you guilly? said the traveler with a string of oaths I'd have won the bet all right but the son of a gun got to sleep first He slept on a hardwood bench for the rest of the night

TEMPERANCE WORKERS.

Proceedings of the Annual State Convention Held at Salem.

Temperance Instruction in the Schools—The Great Temple To Be Built in Chicago—The Juvenile Section.

SALEM, May 23.—Devotions were conducted by Mrs. M. E. K. Edwards. Mrs. J. M. C. Miller, of Portland, assistant editor of the Pacific Express, being present, was made an honorary member of the convention. Afterward it was ascertained that she was entitled to be a voting member as delegate from Multnomah county.

Mrs. McKune, of Forest Grove, and Mrs. Dalgleish, from Portland, came as delegates. Mrs. Keeney, from Silverton, was voted an honorary member.

The report of the committee on credentials was then read, showing about fifty delegates are enrolled.

Mrs. M. E. Hoxter, president of the First district, was absent on account of the illness of her son. A telegram of sympathy was directed to be sent to her from the convention. A telegram was also sent sympathizing with the ex-state president, who is absent on account of her own illness. Another telegram was sent Mrs. Smith-French, of The Dalles, who is absent on account of the illness of her husband.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Mrs. Irvine, of Albany, made her report as state treasurer that $595 48 has been paid into the treasury, and $377 15 paid out, leaving a balance of $218 33 in the treasury. It also appeared that Mrs. A. R. Riggs, state president and organizer, had donated $92, resulting from her lecture collections, to the Refuge home, and a vote of thanks was returned to her, though it was suggested that she ought to have kept her hard earned cash for herself. A vote of thanks was also returned to the treasurer for her able management of the books, and to Mrs. Hatch for successful financial efforts.

Mrs. A. M. Woodward had a good report of distribution of literature in the Third district, which was referred to Mrs. Driggs.

TEMPERANCE INSTRUCTION IN SCHOOLS.

A report of scientific temperance instruction was presented by State Superintendent W. S. Kinney, who had a good report. Mrs. G. J. Ross, of East Portland, had reported to her that she had visited all the schools in her district, and that teachers were doing their duty. Professor McElroy has placed this subject on the programme of teachers' institutes and made valuable suggestions for the furtherance of the cause.

Astoria has done a good work, and the state president has greatly assisted it in her lecture tours through the state. Mrs. K. said: "Our law on this subject is defective. It is left to the disposition of the teachers."

Mrs. Bell Cook, of Salem, said: "There is a law on the statutes of Oregon that requires all the teachers to teach it, and Smith's physiology has been adopted, which is all that could be desired upon the subject. We must visit the schools and by personal effort create an interest in the subject."

Mrs. Vannie Martin, of the Third district, had corresponded with the members of the school board; then she interested some of the mothers and worked all through with them.

The subject was further discussed by Mrs. Riggs, Mrs. Edwards and others, Mrs. Riggs remarking that Oregon deserves great credit for the way in which she is carrying out this law.

TO BUILD A TEMPERANCE TEMPLE.

Miss Weeden reported as state superintendent for the temperance temple. She displayed a large picture of the same, and stated it was to be built in Chicago out of fire-proof material twelve stories high. It was to be built under the auspices of the National W. C. T. U., and will include a publication house, a hall for mass meetings, a memorial hall to keep the history and archives of the temperance reform, a training school to educate workers and for all purposes that will promote prohibition.

Solomon's temple cost the labor and resources of two kingdoms, but one-sixtieth of the men of our nation could build the temple by giving $1 each, and one-tenth of the children, by 10-cent contributions, could furnish it. Every one ought to contribute something to this monumental building of the century.

She herself had pledged $1000, and collected more than one-third of it.

The names of children from birth to ten years old can have their names enrolled and placed in the corner stone by giving 10 cents each. One woman told her the baby was too young and was not named, Miss Weeden said, then I will name it Frances Willard—its last name was Smith, so its name is Frances Willard Smith, the ten cents is paid and the name will go down with the rest of the illustrious builders to the latest generation of this republic. Miss W. requested every one to give something and hoped they would also subscribe for Miss Willard's new book, a copy of which will be placed in the department of history in the library of the temple.

Mrs. Narcissa White Kinney and Mrs. Riggs also highly recommended Miss Willard's book. Mrs. Kinney said, it is a history of fifty years, which covers the history of woman's work and development. Miss Willard was the first woman who was ever dean of a college. She leads the grandest reform of the age, and stands at the head of the greatest society of women ever organized.

At the afternoon session Mrs. Rounds, of McMinnville, led in devotional exercises, and read the sixth chapter of Ephesians. She said: "We want to be familiar with the Bible in regard to wine. It speaks of wine thirty-eight times. Every time it commends wine it is unfermented wine, but where it is used to represent the wrath of God it is fermented wine."

An invitation was received from President Thomas VanScoy, of the Willamette university, to have one of the lady speakers address the students. Rev. Mr. Brown sent word that no prayer meeting would be held at the Congregational church to-night on account of Mrs. Kinney's lecture. Both communications were answered gratefully.

OTHER REPORTS.

Mrs. Wallace, of Salem, gave her report as state superintendent for conference with influential bodies. She emphasized getting the indorsement of ecclesiastical bodies, who have had experience and are presumed to be on the side of right. She had visited the teachers' and the press associations. The press is the pulse of public sentiment; it is by having a full representation of our work through the press that we are enabled to educate public sentiment so that our country may indeed become "The land of the free and the home of the brave."

Mrs. Edwards, chairman of the auditing committee, reported the books all correct.

Mrs. L. R. Thomas, state superintendent of the juvenile department, then reported. She was appointed less than a year ago. During the months of January and February she sent out sixty postals, but few responded. Salem Loyal Legion has sixty members, Corvallis, 122, and has been reorganized, with Mrs. Spangler as superintendent. Newberg has sixty-eight members, and Mrs. Phillips is superintendent. Pendleton has fifty members enrolled. The Dalles has organized with 100 children; they meet at the M. E. church.

Mrs. L. A. Nash, of Corvallis, state superintendent of press work, made an able report.

Mrs. M. R. Briggs, of Oregon City, reported as state superintendent of literature.

Thursday evening was filled by Mrs. Narcissa White-Kinney's lecture. It was a grand discourse, covering every point in the discussion of the question of temperance—encouraging in outlook and uplifting in sentiment. The lecture was received with enthusiasm, and the speaker was presented with a magnificent basket of flowers. The music was led by Professor Parvin, and the benediction pronounced by Rev. J. L. Parrish, the most venerable man in Oregon.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

SALEM, May 24.

The annual election of officers this morning resulted as follows: President, Mrs. A. R. Riggs, of Portland; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henrietta Brown, of Albany; recording secretary, Mrs. R. M. Robb, of East Portland; treasurer, Mrs. Margaret I. Bilyeu, of Eugene City.

When Mrs. Riggs was escorted to the chair she was greeted with the Chautauqua salute, to which she responded in a characteristic speech, thanking the members for their confidence in her, soliciting their earnest co-operation, expressing her appreciation of the help to the work the presence of Mrs. Narcissa White-Kinney in the state will be and trusting in God that the coming year will be still more prosperous than the past.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

In the afternoon the convention listened to the report of Mrs. Belle W. Cooke, state superintendent of lecture bureau, which showed efficient work done in the state the past year through the instrumentality of the bureau in getting good speakers in the lecture field. Mrs. Henrietta Moore was spoken of very highly as a platform worker.

Mrs. Mary S. Kinney read the report of the committee on resolutions, which was adopted item by item. The most prominent features of the resolutions were clauses advocating that the W. C. T. U. make a specialty of the anti-treat pledge work, also that of social points or white cross department, and one expressing an entire faith that the only solution of the temperance question, is the education of the masses up to the point where total prohibition throughout the nation could be secured and enforced.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to the ladies of Salem for their bountiful and delicious lunches set daily in the basement of the church for the enjoyment of the delegates.

It was moved and adopted that the convention ask Superintendent Downing of the penitentiary to prohibit the use of tobacco among his convicts, for the reason that it injures them morally, mentally and physically.

After transacting some miscellaneous business, the convention adjourned to attend the reception tendered them at the elegant home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace, where a delicious lunch was served, and the members enjoyed themselves in social converse until the evening session.

YOUNG WOMEN'S BRANCH.

This session was devoted to the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Miss Emma O. Warren, state president of the Y. W. C. T. U., then read her report, which showed a very prosperous condition of the work, there being 40 members in the state. Large sums of money have been raised for benevolent purposes. Many socials and entertainments had given us a means of interesting young people and keeping them amused and away from promiscuous influences elsewhere. Much good work had been done by the flower mission department. Many thousands of bouquets and a vast quantity of fruits with scriptural texts attached had been distributed in hospitals and jails throughout the state. Considerable attention had been given to alleviating the sufferings of invalids, to supplying their wants and cheering these afflicted ones throughout the state.

A very interesting programme of musical and literary exercises by the members of the union was then rendered, to the pleasure of the large audience. This was the last of the present session of the State W. C. T. U.

The superintendents for the three districts in Oregon are, for the First district, Mrs. L. M. Kern; Second district, Mrs. E. E. Irvine; and for the Third district, Mrs. Mary V. Marks.

The next annual convention will be held in Portland, during the month of May, 1890.

Stone in the Kidney.

I was first taken with sharp pains in the lower part of my bowels in the region of the bladder. Shortly blood appeared mixed with my urine, and a few weeks later I had an attack of gravel. I tried a number of doctors. One said it was gravel, another and another stone in kidneys. For three months I was under the care of an eminent doctor at Albany, but constantly growing worse, went home to die. At this time I was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout N. Y., and am now robust and strong. A remedy which can do this for one so near death as I was should be known everywhere. I hope this statement will cause others afflicted as I was to use the Remedy.—G. W. Brown, Petersburg, N. Y.

Inflammation of the Bladder,

CANCER OF THE SKIN

SSS

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC has cured thousands of this fearful disease, many of them after all other remedies had failed and the case was regarded hopeless. It seems to cure by forcing out the poison through the Cancer.

The World Ought to Know It.

The world ought to know what S. S. S. has done for me in the cure of a malignant Cancer, which was so bad as to be considered incurable by the physicians in Chicago, where I went to be treated. The hospital surgeons gave me up, saying they could do nothing for me. One of my neighbors sent me a copy of an advertisement cut from a paper in regard to Swift's Specific, and I began taking it. I got relief from the first few doses; the poison was gradually forced out of my system, and I was soon cured, sound and well. It is now ten months since I quit taking S. S. S., and I have had no sign of return of the dreadful disease.
MRS. ANN BOTHWELL.
Au Sable, Mich., Dec. 29, '88.

My father had for years an eating cancer on his under lip, which had been gradually growing worse until it had eaten away his under lip down to the gums, and was feeding itself on the inside of his cheek, and the surgeons said a horrible death was soon to come. We gave him nine bottles of Swift's Specific, and he has been entirely cured.
South Easton, Mass. W. R. LATHROP.

Swift's Specific has cured my cancer, which was very bad. I am now in fine health—never better. Have gained 25 pounds since I began taking Swift's Specific. E. S. BRADFORD, Tiptonville, Tenn.

A young man near this town had an eating cancer on his face, which had destroyed his nose and was eating towards his eyes. As a last resort I put him on Swift's Specific, and it has cured him entirely, sound and well. M. F. CRUMLEY, M. D.

SAPOLIO

and you will win.

Is there any melody in work? Work is considered irksome—troublesome—unpleasant. If it does not accord with our desires, it makes discord in our hearts. But to people who are trained to do it rightly, work is one of the best amusements, and knows no discord. There is melody in work. If the one who works uses the best methods and combines wisdom with the work, then it goes forward joyfully. Sapolio is the best method of doing all house cleaning. No. 26.

It is indeed a wonderful remedy—toning the nerves, strengthening the muscles, checking the waste, invigorating the whole system, and restoring the afflicted to HEALTH and HAPPINESS.

PORTLANDS WIN THIS TIME.

They Put Up a Good Game and Get Away With the Willamettes.

The Score Was Rather One-Sided, Standing 10 to 2—Tom Parrott's Pitching Was Batted Quite Freely.

The Portlands batted Tom Parrott out of the box in the fourth inning of yesterday's game, and piled up three singles and two doubles, which scored six runs, four of them earned. It was up hill work for the Willamettes from the start, and the Waterloo of the fourth inning seemed to take all the spirit out of them. Jiggs Parrott pitched the remainder of the game and put an end to the Portlands heavy batting and run making. Landis put up a splendid game and kept the Willamettes down to a two-bagger and two single hits that counted for nothing They popped up a number of flies and banged grounders around at a lively rate, but all were well fielded The Portlands played better than they have at any time this season. None of their errors were costly

HOW THE GAME WAS PLAYED

Tom Parrott the first to the plate was called out on strikes. His brother Jiggs hit sharply to Barker, who made a neat pickup of the grounder and fielded him out at first McGuire dropped Buchtel s high fly and Neale closed the inning by going out at first

G Parrott tarried long enough at the plate in the second to get hit by a pitched ball He dropped his bat and ran to first stole second and reached third on Barker s muff of McCarthy s throw He never reached home for Kerns and Turnbull struck out and Morgan lifted a fly to Garson

The Willamettes made their first run in the third Bailey began by striking out and Tom Parrott followed by bunting the ball out of Landis's reach Barker picked up Jiggs Parrott s hot grounder neatly, but made a wild throw to cut Tom off at second. Tom then put off for third but Garson got the ball there ahead of him. Jiggs ran to second and waited until Buchtel drove a liner into center field and scored him Neale went out at first and spoiled Buchtel s chance for a run

During the next five innings the East Portland boys did nothing except to fan out and make hits that were easily captured. Jiggs Parrott opened the ninth by popping up a foul fly to McCarthy Buchtel got a ball where he wanted it, and gave McGuire an opportunity to chase the sphere in center field Neale followed with a grounder that whizzed past Garson Then G Parrott flew out to Drummond. Kerns aroused the flagging spirits of the Willamettes by driving a hot liner to the left field fence but outside of the foul lines. Umpire Gallagher called it a foul but Kerns ran all the same scoring Buchtel and Neale and making a home run himself For the next five minutes Umpire Gallagher and Captains McAndries and Turnbull had it out on the infield Gallagher refused to change his decision and Buchtel and Neale had to go back to the bases. Buchtel made a daring steal too third and Neale started for second but he never reached it McAndries and Vaughn cornered him and ran him out but before they could touch him with the ball, Buchtel had run home

HOW THE PORTLANDS WON

McAndries was the first of the Portlands to come to the front. He put his bat against the first good ball and gave Kerns some fielding to do He reached second easily Parrott dropped the ball when about to deliver it to the bat, and McAndries accepted the chance After Garson had been fielded out at first and Nawn had struck out, Bailey juggled Vaughn s grounder McAndries scored on the error Turnbull s muff of Jiggs Parrott s throw and a wild pitch allowed Vaughn and Barker to score

A safe hit, a passed ball and Jiggs Parrott s fumble of McAndries s grounder made McGuire s run count in the second.

Single hits by McAndries, Garson and McGuire, two baggers by Barker and Drummond, and a fumble by G Parrott gave the Portlands six runs in the fourth inning The Portlands had such a lead that it was not necessary to do any hard work during the remainder of the game.

GIVE US A WIRE NETTING

The reporters and the official scorers of the baseball games at Clinton & McCoy s grounds devote about as much time to dodging the hot foul tips that find their way into the scoring stand which is built flush with the catcher s back stop, as to keeping track of the game Every game a dozen or more hot liners play all around the stand and some of them find their way into the place. In consequence there have been several very narrow escapes from injury and the scorers have concluded not to expose themselves to the danger of being seriously hurt and yesterday none of them occupied the stand In every large city score stands situated like the one at Clinton & McCoy s grounds are protected by a strong wire netting in front and this improvement should be made at the East Portland grounds. A wooden awning to keep out the hot rays of the afternoon sun would also be appreciated

THE SANTIAM MINES.

History of Their Discovery and First and More Recent Workings.

Extent and Quality of the Gold, Silver and Galena Ores—Portland Capital Interested in Their Development

GOLDEN CITY, Linn County, Or, May 25

The Santiam mines, better known as the Quartzville mining district Linn county Or, were discovered in 1855 or near that time, and were worked and scratched over for free gold not knowing anything of the silver ores of to-day Later they were worked some in tunnels and open cuts. These mines and prospects are lying on both sides of the north fork and of the south fork of the Santiam river and run in a southeast and northwest direction parallel veins or lodes of quartz between granite and white porphyry and black slate and about one mile wide, length unknown There is gold and silver on the west side of the belt or zone, and galena on the east side

On the southeast side of the Santiam, the mountains and ridges run nearly east and west, with the rivers, yet small spurs run in various directions, forming deep canyons and are covered with heavy timber of cedar, hemlock, sugar pine and red fir, sprinkled with larch, making thick undergrowth The ledges or veins cross these ridges at right angles and crop out on the steep points covered with moss.

The Galena mining camp is about four miles southeast, direct line or seven miles by trail from Quartzville and is a fine group of mines, mostly grey carbonates yet some of them contain galena and low grade of ores The Queen has old marks of works many years ago, shows very fine blue galena and red oxides has also a large tunnel about 280 feet long, through granite porphyry and a body of blue grey quartz partially crystallized bearing galena, lead chloride of silver, gold (native) and pyrites of iron and sulphur About one-half mile southeast from the Queen is a natural tunnel about thirty feet long which contains lead carbonates similar to Leadville, Col and ore rich in silver and galena

The old Quartzville and burnt mill are on the west side of the Santiam, and the northwest side of the parallel range with the river, known as the White Bull mountain, is the center of the gold belt Some of the finest ledges of quartz in Oregon are found in this district containing gold, silver, lead and tin The White Bull mine was patented about eight years ago has several tunnels with black sulph rates of silver blue galena, pyrites of iron and copper Assays average $100 in gold per ton and silver $60, though some assays run very high About $10,000 per ton have been found The mill was owned by the W B Company and run with success with a lease to the Salmon Brothers of Portland, who made quite a fortune and afterwards a fire in the forests burnt the mill and town of Quartzville

The extension of the White Bull on the northwest is called the Golden Ridge mine located in September 1888 by Dr E O Smith of Portland. Old tunnels with trees growing in their entrances have been discovered One tunnel 250 feet long four feet wide, in solid quartz assays $100 in gold per ton and an average of $60 in silver

The Discovery shaft down thirty feet has a fine body of free gold some pieces the size of a man s finger nail average assay $100 gold and $60 silver per ton Two assays ran over $5000 in gold per ton The silver ore is black oxide and black sulphurets The mine is valued at $100 000

The Black Bear mine, parallel with the White Bull assays about $40 gold silver, $16 tin, 5 per cent

The Golden Fleece mine owned by L Magruder & Co, runs $200 to $900 in gold and from $10 to $40 in silver, not yet thoroughly prospected Eight feet wide between the walls Top cropping assayed by Mr Jeune of Portland went $8 85 in gold per ton having a million tons of quartz in sight

The Monarch mine owned by Messrs Donlay & McChesney of Albany has a fine lode Some work done eighteen years ago shows $40 in gold on top

The Mammoth, owned by the Canal Fork company has a tunnel 300 feet in a solid body of ore Out of twenty sacks of ore, samples average $8.50 in gold per ton

The Captain mine owned by Reed & Co of Albany has a ledge eight feet wide of concentrating ore assays from $17 to $40 per ton in silver trace of gold

The G A R ledge owned by Messrs Barker & Giddings of Albany has a large body of ore in sight (ros quartz) contains two ledges in solid walls not yet developed, but assay well on top

The William Pell and Extension owned by Lloyd Magruder & Co has a large body of quartz about half a mile long and fifty feet wide which is the finest body of quartz in the district assays average $40 in gold and $8 in silver per ton

The camp has been run over and located without regard to the mineral until 1888 Visitors from Coeur d Alene and Arizona state we have a fine camp of good ore We have had a miners meeting and made a camp named Golden City, mining district No 3 Linn county Oregon President A L Campbell secretary Lloyd Magruder

THE RIVER GIVES UP ITS DEAD

The Body of Harry Goehring Recovered Yesterday Morning—Funeral in the Afternoon

The body of Harry F Goehring, who was drowned near the east approach of the Jefferson street ferry a week ago yesterday was found floating in the river near Albina early yesterday morning having been entombed in the placid waters of the Willamette nearly a week

Patrick Daley saw the body floating a little above the Albina ferry as he was crossing the river He took it to the shore and at once notified the coroner who sent a team to bring it to the morgue

The remains were prepared for burial and the funeral was held from the undertaking rooms of Holman & Delin at 4 o clock in the afternoon

The last services over the remains of the young man were attended by a number of his companions who worked with him in the book bindery of Meston & Dygert.

Although a reward was offered for the recovery of the body Mr Daley refused to accept any compensation preferring rather to do a good act the opportunity for which was thrown into his way without any effort on his part with the greater satisfaction of having done his duty

It is thought rather singular that the body should have floated such a distance without being seen by any of the passing boats, and the only explanation seems to be that either it was carried along the bottom of the river a short distance at a time by the commotion of the water caused by passing steamers or else it came to the surface some time during the night and floated undiscovered until recovered yesterday morning

Thus ends the last act of the river tragedy that brought two young men, on the threshold of manhood to an untimely grave The body of Moses Danziger was buried last Wednesday and the last sad rites over the remains of Harry Goehring were performed yesterday

NEEDED A CURFEW ORDINANCE

There is one thing that is very much needed in the city of Albina and that is a curfew ordinance

Very few parents are aware of how their young hopefuls are amusing themselves after the twilight hours—when they slip off to meet a chum around the corner Many a youth has been led astray by this congregating on the streets late at night when home was the only proper place for him to be A curfew ordinance would check the desire to remain out late and might be conducive of great good East Portland has one, and it is considered a great benefit by the citizens of that city

A PLEASANT EXCURSION

The Albina school children and friends were out in full force last Saturday morning to attend the excursion to Vancouver It was a pleasing sight to see so many happy faces (some 600 children) in line and keeping time with the beating of the drums as they marched to the train on Margaretta avenue The excursionists arrived safely home in the evening perfectly delighted with their trip to the newly elected state of Washington

IT IS PROFITABLE

Advertising in THE OREGONIAN is a profitable investment as is proven by the little ad that was inserted by the city council notifying taxpayers that the list was delinquent—there being but a small delinquent list on the tax roll as compared with former years

CLOSE OF SCHOOL

The schools of Albina will close this week for a vacation of three months. To the over taxed teachers and too ambitious pupils this will be a great benefit and give them a chance to recruit mentally as well as physically

WAVERLY WOODSTOCK MOTOR LINE

Something Definite To Be Decided Upon in a Few Days by the Subscribers

A meeting of the subscribers to the subsidy for the Waverly and Woodstock motor line was held Saturday but nothing definite was decided upon About enough has been subscribed to build a steam motor line but an effort is to be made to procure enough to build an electric motor line This will require about $8000 more which could be raised in no time if all who will be benefited would do their share, but some seem inclined to hold back and let others put up money for their benefit. The question as to whether there will be an electric motor or no motor will be settled this week as if people who ought to subscribe will not, the matter will be dropped The line is to be about four miles long and ends at the tract lately purchased by Messrs. Havely Smith Kennedy and others, and which they have named Woodstock
